ROSTOV DRIVE SLOWED

Business Booming As 3,800 Work on Marion War Plant

City Expects to Pass Mansfield In Size Soon As Employment Soars; Ordnance Works to Hire From 12,000 to 20,000.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of articles by John M. Schroeder, News-Journal city editor, on Mansfield's status and future in a nation at war, as compared with other Ohio cities. Yesterday, he described the situation in Newark, just allotted a $22,000,000 aluminum plant. Today's story deals with Marion, where 3,800 workmen are building a huge army ordnance plant that will eventually employ more than 12,000.

By JOHN M. SCHROEDER
(News-Journal City Editor)

MARION—If Newark, down in Licking county, is happy over the prospect of the arrival of a new war industry, Marion is literally bubbling over with enthusiasm—and prosperity.

For Marion's plant is now in the process of construction—3,800 people are working on it.

It's known as the Scioto Ordnance works, to be operated by the U. S. Rubber company, and when it is in full operation, it will employ between 12,000 and 20,000 persons.

That's far larger than the projected Alcoa plant at Newark. If it never employed more than 12,000 persons—and most everyone thinks it will, though actual figures are shrouded in secrecy—that's still equal to twice the entire population of Shelby, and more people than are now employed in all Mansfield industry.

Keep that employment figure in mind—later in this series of articles you'll see what effect it may have on Mansfield.

Unlike Newark and Mansfield, Marion was not in distress when it decided the city "should have a greater part in the war effort."

The town's employment figure didn't drop to any extent either before or after Pearl Harbor.

Marion Chamber of Commerce charts show that employment reached a 1941 peak of 5,600 in July. It was in that same month that Marion took the first steps to try for a war plant.

Employment stayed on that level, with only slight variation, up to the time Pearl Harbor was attacked on Dec. 7.

(Mansfield dropped from a peak employment figure of 13,123 in July, 1941, to 10,854 in January, 1942).

In Marion, employment showed slight increases for February, March and April and on May 1, its employment stood at about 6,100.

Then, starting on May 1, the employment line started to skyrocket. It marked the beginning of large-scale work on the ordnance plant. By the end of May, employment stood at slightly above 9,000 and by the end of June it stood just under the 10,000 mark.

And in that employment figure are some 800 Mansfielders—mostly construction workers—who travel back and forth daily, for the most part. They work in Marion because there's work for them there, and there's none for them here.

(Mansfield's employment figure at the end of June stood at 10,278. This is a drop of 2,885 since its peak of just a year ago.)

Marion Expects to Outstrip Mansfield In Growth Within Year

NATURALLY, with 3,800 new jobs—those involved in the construction of this war giant—a town doesn't remain the same. Marion isn't the same, and it's going to change even more.

Already, estimates are that the city has grown by 3,000 from its 1940 census figure of 30,785.

And the Marion Chamber of Commerce predicts that by July, 1943—a year from now— Marion will be a city of 52,000. That would put it far ahead of Mansfield, with its 1940 figure of 37,154.

Let's look at the sales tax figures for Marion county, and see how they stack up with those in Richland county — remembering that Marion is still smaller than Richland, though it may not be so a year from now.

For the first six months of 1942, Marion county prepaid sales tax receipts were greater, as compared with the same period of 1941, than any other county in Ohio, except two.

Here are the figures. For the first six months of 1942, prepaid sales tax receipts in Marion county were $180,439. For the same period in 1941 they were $181,598.

That's a drop of $1,159, or six tenths of one per cent. Eighty-six of Ohio's 88 counties showed losses for the six-month period. The two that didn't were Allen and Gallia counties. Of the 86 showing losses, Marion's decrease was the smallest.

In Richland county, where conversion to war production has been slow, and where there are no major war industries, the decrease in prepaid sales tax receipts was 23.9 per cent. The figures, if you need them, were $358,659 for the first six months of 1941 and $272,835 for the same period this year. That's a loss, conservatively figured, of more than $2,500,000 in retail business. Marion county's loss was less than $40,000.

It must be remembered that the average person can't buy an automobile, or a refrigerator, or an electric range these days — and that has been greatly responsible for the state-wide drop in sales tax revenue.

But the increase in other business in Marion county has just about offset the shutdown in the sale of those items.

Marion now has practically no unemployment. As of June, there were 72 persons on WPA, several on a WPA housing survey. There were 136 relief cases last month.

Department store sales have shot up from 30 to 50 per cent over last year.

Those increased sales, right now, come principally from the pay checks of the 3,800 construction workers at the ordnance plant.

Obviously, they'll be even greater when the United States Rubber company takes over the plant and begins operations, with a force of at least 12,000 workers. And there are few persons in Marion who don't think the employment figure will be far above 12,000.

But even now, with no factory operation under way yet, and only construction workers on the job, at the ordnance plant, the Marion business picture is still bright.

At almost any hour of the day from 10 in the morning until 10 at night, Marion's business section looks as busy as downtown Mansfield on a Saturday afternoon. And there's a real jam in the stores on Friday nights—payday—when the stores are open until 10 o'clock. They close at 6 on Saturday and other days of the week.

Now, not all this business boom comes from the ordnance plant and the related Marion War Aid depot. Marion has other industries, and they are all busy on war orders.

The town's major plants are working full blast on war production.

They include the Marion Steam Shovel company, the Osgood company and its affiliated plants, the Commercial Steel Castings company, the Alloy Cost Steel company which produces electric furnaces and the General Excavator company which manufactures excavating shovels and cranes.

Marion Started Its Effort to Get A War Industry Just a Year Ago

MARION took its first step toward obtaining a war industry just a year ago this month.

In July, 1941, the board of directors of the Marion Chamber of Commerce authorized the creation of a three-member war industry committee.

The directors took the stand that "Marion should have a greater part in the war effort," Chamber Secretary Louis E. Michels explained. Michels was designated as one member of the committee, and it was he who made all personal contact with Washington.

He made three trips to the nation's capital.

"The first trip," Michels said, "was made merely to check on what contacts should be made later. Not a move was made nor was any individual or office approached on that trip."

Michels declined to outline in detail of what happened after that and on his subsequent visits to Washington.

"We compiled what we thought was a very complete report on Marion, its resources and its adaptability for an industry. We didn't exaggerate the picture of what Marion had to offer. We merely stated the facts."

O. S. R. INMATE TRIES TO FLEE GUARD, KILLED

Officer Fires After Sighting Pair Who Escaped From Dairy Barn.

AT LIBERTY 3 HOURS

Companion Caught Following Shooting Along Rail Line Near Institution.

A Youngstown inmate was dead and another was back behind bars at the Ohio State Reformatory today following a midnight escape from the institution farm under the cover of a dense fog.

Tony Amadio, 21, admitted to the reformatory July 3, 1941, to serve one to 15 years for burglary and larceny, was shot and killed by Guard Ray Miller, while attempting to elude capture, Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said.

Acting County Coroner Dr. L. A. Hautzenroeder said a bullet from Miller's revolver entered Amadio's left breast just below the heart, causing instant death.

Fred Elkins, 22, serving one to 20 years for driving an automobile without the owner's consent, surrendered after his companion was shot, Glattke said.

Elkins entered the institution July 3, 1940, from Jackson county.

Amadio and Elkins were trusties assigned to a night milking detail at the reformatory dairy barn just west of the institution proper.

Glattke said their disappearance was discovered about 11:40 p. m. yesterday by a guard in charge of the barn. An alarm was sounded and a guard posse took up the chase.

Guards Miller and Harry Schroeter sighted the fugitives two hours later along the Erie railroad, near the Richland Shale Brick company, three miles north of the reformatory.

The guards said their commands to halt were ignored and Miller fired one shot from his .38 caliber revolver, both inmates falling to the ground. They told the superintendent Amadio died instantly. Elkins surrendered without a struggle.

Glattke said Elkins and Amadio had been well-behaved prisoners and neither had caused trouble previously.

Amadio's body was removed to the Jones funeral home. His parents in Youngstown have been notified, the superintendent said.

U. S. Naval Task Force Meets Planes Off Europe.

LONDON—(AP)—Rear Admiral Robert C. Giffen, commander of a U. S. naval task force with the British fleet, disclosed today the force had been in action against enemy aircraft.

Admiral Giffen described the operations as "just the usual thing." Units of the American force have had flurries with planes but so far have not brushed with enemy naval craft, he said, adding that no severe damage has been suffered.

"Everything is all right so far," he said.

The American fleet units were operating "in the north—against polar bears or something," before the United States entered the war, Admiral Giffen disclosed.

Morale of the men in the force is fine and "the kids love their jobs," he declared. Some of them are due in London soon for their first leave in more than a year.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— The state library board will meet Monday to select a successor to Paul A. T. Noon, state librarian who resigned more than a month ago under pressure of the Republican state administration, State Education Director Kenneth C. Ray said today.

Ray said that the names of four or five candidates for the post, suggested by the Ohio Library association, were being considered by board members.

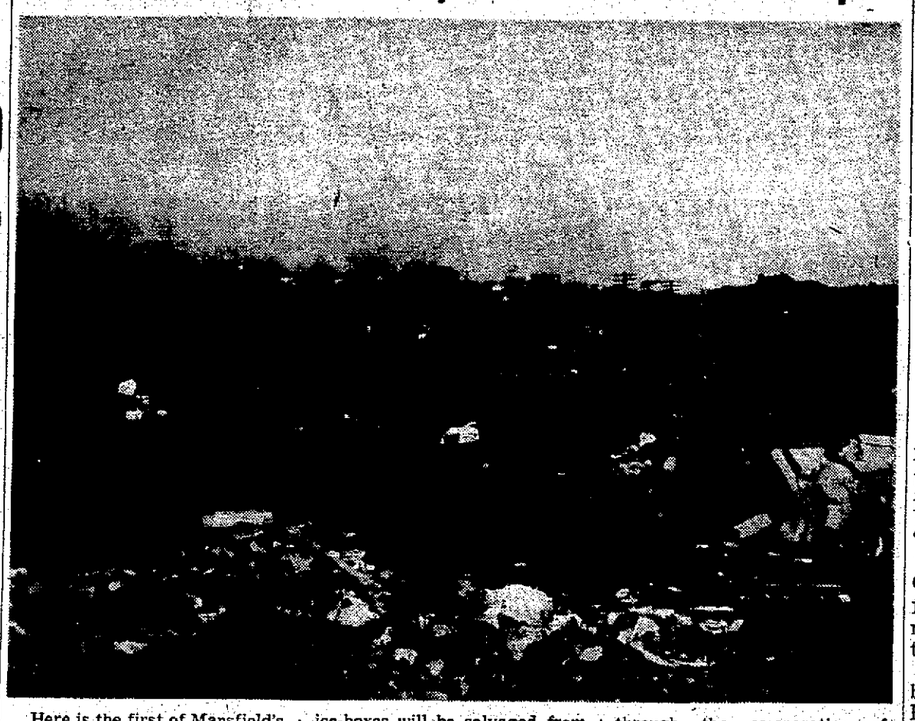
20,000 Tons of Scrap Buried In This Dump



Here is the first of Mansfield's municipally owned dumps that will speed the war effort by yielding "buried treasure." At least 20,000 tons of scrap metal from stoves, refrigerators and ice-boxes will be salvaged from the long-forgotten materials buried in the city-owned dump on Park avenue east near the Mansfield sewage disposal plant. The cache was unearthed through the co-operation of Mansfield officials and war production board after a WPB salvage sleuth tracked down rumors that there was such a thing in Mansfield.

City's Dump Heaps Start Yielding 'Buried Treasure'

Source of Obtaining 20,000 Tons of Scrap Found East of City; Salvage Program Being Mapped.

Mansfield's city-owned dumps started yielding "buried treasure" for the war effort today after a cache containing a possible 20,000 tons of discarded scrap iron and steel from stoves, refrigerators and ice-boxes was unearthed through the co-operation of city officials and the War Production Board.

The scrap that has been lying dormant for years in the city-owned dump on Park avenue east near the Mansfield sewage disposal plant will be salvaged in the immediate future and then sold to a scrap dealer for preparation and shipment to the steel mills.

Tracked down by A. W. Orr, a salvage inspector for WPB, who had heard rumors of such a cache in Mansfield, the long-forgotten scrap was discovered when soundings were made by a steam shovel sent to the dump under the joint auspices of the city and WPB.

About six openings were made, Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff said today, and a much greater volume of scrap was uncovered than was originally expected.

The material was scrapped by various Mansfield manufacturing plants because of defects or because it failed to meet the manufacturer's requireemtns.

Officials of these companies were approached by Orr when he first came to Mansfield. The latter also contacted a trucker who had

That the scrap is "still good as scrap steel because it has been preserved from the ravages of rust by a heavy coating of enamel," was indicated by R. K. Kenney, regional chief of the special projects section of WPB.

Kennedy said there were several other municipal owned dumps in Mansfield on which sounds will also be made. The rumors of a Mansfield cache were tracked down the regional chief explained after WPB had "requisitioned" a ravine full of refrigerators on a farm near Dayton several months ago.
one time hauled much of the scrap to the Mansfield owned dump.

The Mansfield cache will be a part of the tremendous scrap iron and steel salvage program inaugurated today by the state salvage committee.

Mansfield city council will be asked to appropriate funds for the salvage program that will also be financed in part by the War Production Board, Director Wolff said. He added that five contractors had already been asked to submit bids for the work.

Robert O. Weibel, committee chairman, said that the federal government had fixed Ohio's scrap metal quota for the next six months at 2,175,000 tons or approximately 30 pounds per person.

Seventy per cent of Ohio's quota is expected to come from industrial plants, railroad shops and automobile wreckers, and the remainder from farm and home.

800 Employes of Galion War Strike After Parley Fails

GALION — Approximately 800 production employes of the North Electric Manufacturing company, engaged in war work production, were on strike today in a labor dispute involving a request by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL) union for a working agreement with the firm.

P. V. Prosser, president of the Galion local, said employes refused to go to work this morning after union and company officials failed to reach an agreement on a contract at a meeting last night.

Union members picketed plant entrances but allowed office workers and company officials to enter the factory.

F. J. Santschi, national representative for the I. B. E. W. charged that the company had refused to discuss a working agreement with the union.

"The employes are on their own," he said this morning. "The company has refused any offer of arbitration and has offered nothing in the way of a contract."

Company officials refused to make a statement apparently awaiting the arrival of a federal conciliator who is expected here this afternoon from Washington.

Plant employes recently voted 580 to 47 in an NLRB election designating the union as a bargaining agent for production workers.

Average Driver Has 154 More Days Left for Present Tires

Unless he changes his driving habits pretty quickly, the average Mansfield motorist has only 154 more days to drive his automobile before he must look around for a new tire.

That's the warning that was given by members of Mansfield's war department board, holding their organization meeting at the Chamber of Commerce rooms last night to set up plans for the formation of a "share-the-ride" plan and for the rationing of "war-worker" tires.

Board members heard James Bailey, secretary of the Richland county rationing board, urge them to act as a steering committee for rationing tires to industrial workers and appointed sub-committees to contact all industries in the area employing more than 100 workers.

Bailey told the board that 33 No. 2 war-worker tires had been received and may be rationed during the remainder of this month, but he added, "not a single tire will be rationed until the transportation board has set up com-

ASKS BOOST IN U. S. TAX BILL

Morgenthau Wants Billion and Half More; Cites Need For Huge Borrowing.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Secretary Morgenthau called for a two and one-half billion dollar boost in the tax bill today with a warning that only bold war taxation could bring America sound economic future.

He appealed to the senate finance committee to increase the house-approved $6,271,000,000 tax measure to a minimum of $8,700,000. Substantially, the administration asked the same revenue from the same sources proposed to the house months ago.

He pointed out that since these proposals were met, the schedule of war spending for the current fiscal year has been stepped up by $14,000,000,000 while the house sliced about $2,400,000,000 from the revenue measure.

"If the house bill were to become law," he said, "it would be necessary to borrow from the public during this fiscal year about $53,000,000,000. To the extent that we enlist our current income in taxes to cut down this

Asphalt 'Freeze' Takes Effect, Road Work Halted Here

Work on the U. S. Routes 30 and 42 resurfacing projects in Mansfield was delayed indefinitely today by a government order freezing all asphalt used in road construction and repairs.

The order, which became effective at midnight Wednesday, halted work on State Route 13 south of Mansfield. Resurfacing of the route from seven miles south of Mansfield north about five miles toward Mansfield was more than two-thirds completed. Work had not been started, however, on the section south of Bellville.

The Mansfield Asphalt Paving company holds the contract for the Route 13 job and was awarded the project in Mansfield contingent upon whether the state highway department can get approval of the use of asphalt on the job.

Vance Grimes, Ashland division state highway engineer, said no road work in which asphalt, or

U.S. Planes Aid Red Artillery In New Stand

Key to Caucasus Half Encircled; Nazis Claim Forces Enter City Suburbs; Fierce Tank Battles Raging Northwest of Voronezh.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—Red army artillery and the Red air force, reinforced by American-made flying fortresses, slowed the Axis onslaught on the lower Don river front today in heavy battles defending Rostov and the road to Stalingrad on the Volga.

Warned that "our troops can and must" halt the enemy offensive against the Caucasus, the Russian forces appeared to be making their main stand in new and more favorable positions, although it seemed that the position of half-encircled Rostov might become untenable.

(The German communique said that Axis forces had broken through into the suburbs of Rostov, that the lower Don had been crossed between Rostov and Stalingrad and that Nazi advance units were pressing into the easternmost Don river bend which extends to within 35 miles of the Volga industrial center. It reported that Italian troops were occupying the Don basin industrial towns in the wake of the Nazi advance. Vichy radio claimed that Rostov had been virtually encircled, cutting the Russians there off from the Caucasus.)

Heavy fighting against reinforced German tank columns was reported in the areas of Rostov, Novosherkassk, 32 miles northeast and Tsimlyanskaya, which lies eastward on the Don about 115 miles from Stalingrad. On the front southeast of Boguchar, the enemy was reported pushing into Stalingrad district but exact positions were not given. (Axis reports claimed the advance was nearing the Don about 35 miles from Stalingrad.)

A hurricane of Russian artillery fire and persistent low-altitude attacks by Soviet Stormovik assault planes were breaking up enemy columns and concentrations, front line dispatches said, in addition to big casualties inflicted by the Russians in land fighting in the Rostov area.

All Soviet operations north of the Don, however, were described as defensive fighting, except in the Voronezh sector where the Russians took another town, reported about 8,000 enemy casualties and 30 tanks destroyed in continuing counter-attacks that pushed the Germans back and into the Don river at some points.

Red Star reported that fierce tank battles—took place northwest of Voronezh when the Germans attempted a counter-attack along a water barrier, while a

OFFENSIVE: British Move Up, Hold New Positions In Egypt

BULLETIN

CAIRO—(U.P.)—Heavy fighting spread all along the 40-mile Egyptian desert front from the Mediterranean to Qattara depression today when British imperials, seizing the initiative, assaulted Axis dug-in positions and halted their counter-attacks.

(By United Press)

CAIRO—British imperial forces have consolidated positions taken in a new limited offensive on the Alamein front, it was announced today.

A communique of the Middle Eastern command and the Royal Air Force said the imperials advanced in heavy fighting throughout yesterday on all sectors of the front.

Axis forces counter-attacked in an effort to throw back the British but the imperials held their ground and repulsed the thrusts, it was stated.

(The British radio said that a "full-scale battle" was in progress but that the British advance thus far had been strictly limited and did not constitute a break-through or forward sweep.)

Infantry opened the attack early yesterday.

In the northern sector, fighting centered around the Hill of Jesus and the Makhkhad and Meteiriya ridges, the communique said. In the center, key to the battle line, the fighting was concentrated mainly at the western end of the Ruweisat ridge and in the Deir El Shein sector slightly to the north.

"Our troops made some progress, which was consolidated," the communique said of the fighting in the center, in which big task forces were thrown.

British and South African light bombers and fighter-bombers fought dust storms to support the ground forces, first hammering the northern end of the Axis line, then shifting to the center where better targets were found.

There was no indication whether Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck would follow up the success of his Eighth army in its most determined attack of the present campaign.

FOOTHOLD: Japs Succeed In Fresh Thrust at New Guinea

(By Associated Press)

GENERAL M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia—The Japanese, in the first aggressive thrust toward Australia since their smashing Coral sea defeat, have gained a new foothold on the southeast New Guinea coast, 100 miles across from the vital American and Australian garrisoned Allied outpost of Port Moresby.

Under a terrific bombing and strafing assault from Allied planes, the enemy put ashore a force of between 1,500 and 2,500 troops Wednesday at Gona mission, near Buna on the Papuan peninsula coast and 150 miles southeast of Japanese-held Salamaua.

General MacArthur's headquarters announced that this landing, in an area where there are no Allied forces, cost the Japanese heavily in casualties, a large transport, and a landing barge sunk and a seaplane shot down. The Allies lost two fighters.

Allied airmen first spotted the small, southbound Japanese convoy picking its way along the island-dotted New Guinea coast just before dark Tuesday. They attacked immediately, scoring hits on the transport which later sank, and resumed the assault when the invaders started going ashore early Wednesday.

This first invasion of the Papau peninsula was considered a greater threat to Port Moresby in that it put the invader closer to the Allied base, but to get there overland he will find the going hard.

Facing the Japanese is the Owen Stanley range, rising above

CALLS ALLIES 'AMATEURS' AT FIGHTING WAR

Churchill's Son Cites Axis as 'Professionals' But Predicts United Nations Victory.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Allied forces in the war are still "largely enthusiastic amateurs" compared with Axis "professionals" brought up to war, Capt. Randolph Churchill, son of Britain's prime minister, asserted today.

The 31-year-old soldier, invalided in a motor crash in Egypt, is in transit to London and arrived in New York yesterday after "hitch-hiking" from Egypt in a week with American pilots.

Wearing a brace on his back to hold a crushed rib in place, young Churchill who was an International News Service correspondent in London prior to his war service, was interviewed at his New York hotel and spoke freely and frankly.

He said that in his opinion the war may end next year "if we're lucky." If not, it may last another year.

"I don't think we're as clever at war as the enemy," he said. "They're professionals and spent 20 years getting ready for this. We're largely enthusiastic amateurs. We were thinking of other things while they were preparing. We thought war was impossible. They've been brought up to it and we've got a great deal to learn."

Churchill has no doubt that the United Nations will triumph. He believes that the enemy "has shot his bolt and certainly must be hard-pressed in Russia," and "can't see any reason for discouragement."

FLIERS WHO BOMBED MOCK TOKYO READY TO ATTACK REAL TARGETS

(By International News Service)

MIDLAND, Tex. Bombardiers who took part in the July 4 spectacle showing how Tokyo was bombed quit practice today and from now on play for keeps. They were among those in the fifth class to graduate from the Midland Army Flying school which claims to be the world's largest bombardier training center.

At today's graduation exercises, bombardiers, navigators and pilots, including four Ohioans, joined hands in a "victory pledge."

Officers outlined the cooperation necessary between the pilot and bombardier and stressed that teamwork must be 100 percent among the three crew members because the average time over a target is only 36 seconds.

The fifth class represented 31 states. Most of the members are to be assigned to tactical units although a few may be assigned as instructors. Ohioans in the list, all bombardiers, were:

Second Lieut. Robert P. Schisler, 23 Canton, a graduate of Villanova college: Second Lieut. John Guzik, 23, of Empire, former Ohio State university football player; Second Lieut. William M. Allen, 27, Glendale, former Washington and Lee university student; and Second Lieut. Frederick B. Hamilton, 23, of Poland, O., a former clerk for the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company.

Military Diaper Makes Its Debut In American Life

NEW YORK—(INS)—World War II has affected all phases of American life — even down to baby's three-cornered pants.

This fact was evidenced by a recent fashion show featuring baby models crawling about a circle wearing a new type of military diaper.

Yes, it's true. The American baby has been made blackout conscious.

The new diaper has phosphorescent ties which can be fastened during a blackout—thus eliminating the danger of pin pricks to mother, father—and even baby as he squirms on his dressing table.

Another feature of the diaper is its variety of phosphorescent patriotic insignias and identifying tabs, designed to aid mothers in picking out their own baby without trouble if a blackout should occur when several children are assembled in one place.

The diapers are produced in several colors for the fastidious infant, including Navy blue, Russian red, battleship grey, MacArthur tan, service stripes and Old Glory.

Business Booming As 3,800 Work on Marion War Plant

Huge Ordnance Works, Now Under Construction, to Employ From 12,000 to 20,000; City Rents Spare Rooms and Watches Its Business Barometers Soar.

That information was taken to Washington, Michels said. He declined to say just where in Washington it was taken.

The secretary did say that some time later army engineers arrived. They started to check up on the data and Michels commented, "they found that all of the data we supplied them represented actual facts."

The data contained the facts that Marion has an ample power supply; water from drilled wells from an abundant source; that it had service from four rail lines, the Erie, Pennsylvania, New York Central and Chesapeake and Ohio, and other pertinent details about the city.

The announcement that Marion had been chosen for the ordnance plant came in February from Congressman Frederick C. Smith, representative from the eighth district which includes Marion.

What transpired between the time the engineers left Marion and when the announcement was made by Congressman Smith is something the Marion Chamber doesn't comment about. That is, if anything did transpire.

Cost of the project and what the plant will produce are shielded by military regulations. It covers an "area of several square miles" as the war department describes it at its Marion office. It is located to the north of Marion and you see evidence of it when you've traveled less than a mile out of the city. The Marion War Aid Depot covers an area relatively much smaller, and is being constructed just east of Marion.

* * * * *

City Takes Steps to Prevent Living Costs From Running Away

MARION'S enthusiasm and optimism over the new industry is quite clearly expressed by Mayor R. S. Snare.

"There is no question that we will solve all the problems that a big industry like this brings on," the mayor said. "We have had problems before and have solved them. We are really pitching in as a stable community—as stable as we have been for 100 years."

Perhaps you're wondering about higher living costs in Marion, higher rents, how the town is going to house the influx of workers and what's going to happen when the "balloon bursts"?

Marion thought about all those things, too. It has all the answers figured out.

People here will tell you that food prices are up. They point out, though, that they were going up even before Marion had its war industry. Even if there were no price ceilings, they say, competition is keeping prices in line. Stores are busy and their operators can make a comfortable profit without raising prices. Consumers don't seem to be complaining.

As for house rents Marion is now organizing a Rent Control board, headed by Mayor Snare. The rent "freeze" applies to the Marion area and it will be the duty of that board to administer provisions in the "freeze" order.

There isn't a vacant house in Marion, and it would seem that rents would go soaring. They have gone up on homes which people had never rented before. The same is true with rooms in homes where the owners never had rented rooms before. These are not subject to the "freeze."

In these cases especially, rentals are up, and some of them are up substantially, Chamber of Commerce Secretary Michels, who is director of housing, said. But he was quick to add that in most cases of other rent increases, the owners now are receiving what the houses are actually worth and what they are entitled to under their investment.

As an interesting observation on renting, this writer paid $3 a day for a room in Newark's best hotel, the Warden. The hotel is not a modern one but the room was comfortable, equipped with a shower, and the hotel service wasn't bad.

In Marion, this writer registered at the Harding hotel, Marion's best. It compares to the Mansfield-Leland here. The rate was $2.75 per day. The room was furnished much better than in the Newark hotel, the shower was modern and the bed more comfortable. The Harding has a full house every day.

Providing homes for the new arrivals has been successful so far and Marion is going ahead with plans to meet the greater demand when the war plant starts operating.

Early this year when first arrivals on the construction program called on Marion for housing, the city was ready. It had about 80 empty houses. These were quickly taken up.

Marion's citizens pitched in to help. More than 1,000 other persons were located in rooms and apartments. Marion did this in response to a public appeal to register home, rooms and apartments.

Now, to take care of the bigger influx of workers in the months to come, Marion is making a house-to-house survey inquiring in each of the city's 8,000 homes whether a room is available for renting.

As was said before, all Marion seems to be taking the war and the city's big war undertaking seriously and in a spirit that they want to help.

The city has more than 8,000 homes. Suppose in that house-to-house survey, Marion finds 4,000 more rooms for incoming workers. That would take care of 4,000 of the minimum of 12,000 workers the ordnance works is expected to hire.

That brings up another interesting observation.

Construction workers are making big money now at the ordnance plant. Some of the workmen are making more money than Marion employes working in other plants.

The great bulk of them are from out of the city. They have to rent quarters in which to live. Some rooms are renting for $3 and $5 and even more per week. By renting a room, the man working in other industry here, gets part of the higher wages his tenant is receiving.

It seems that a town anxious and willing to help the war effort, even to the point of having Jim and Bob sleep together so that an extra room will be available for a war worker, that all get some benefit in return.

Trailer camps and the construction of barracks and dormitories are other means of housing the city is planning. The development of several subdivisions on which a number of homes in the $4,800 class will be built is also in the process of being carried out.

* * * * *

What If 'Balloon' Bursts? Marion Thinks It Is Safeguarded

MARION doesn't seem to be bothered at all about such queries as "when the balloon bursts—then what?" and "what about your 'ghost city' after the war"?

In the first place, Marion is confident that its big plant will still be running after the war. The talk goes around town that the United States Rubber company will use it for the manufacture of rubber products. There is going to be a big demand for those products, Marion reasons, and why shouldn't they be manufactured in this type of a plant?

And supposing the "balloon bursts" and the plant ceases operations. Chamber Secretary Michel seems to have an answer that bears logic. He said:

"Before the ordnance plant came along, Marion was a good, substantial community. We might have gotten along satisfactorily without a new war plant and we decided to help the war effort and take on an industry.

"Before the new industry, let's say Marion stood on a level about here. (He indicated with his hand a line about three feet from the floor.) Now after the industry is here, let's say Marion shot up to this level. (He indicated a line about three feet higher.)

"Now supposing the ordnance plant does close after the war. We will drop back down to here. (He indicated his first line.) But we will go no lower. Our community is still here and so is the substantial foundation on which it's built. WHAT CAN WE LOSE?"

As was noted before, Marion is encouraging trailer camps, dormitories and barracks to house the extra labor supply. These are of a type which could be easily removed, if necessary. Its housing program calls for many homes in the $4,800 class, which are likely to be permanent.

A huge industry brings on other problems which Marion appears to be solving.

It has taken steps to prevent any rise in crime and delinquency.

The city has a curfew law, in fact two of them. One of them prohibits boys and girls under 16 years old from being on the streets after 10 p. m. and the other closes all places where liquor is sold promptly at midnight.

Police Chief William E. Marks says both are being closely observed.

There have been no major crimes since Marion began its population increase. There have been more arrests for intoxication, but the police department's biggest problem is that of floaters and panhandlers.

About 50 "gents of the road" are chased out of town each month, according to the chief, but he adds, "that's no more than we had during the depression." The chief is going to get more men for his department.

Hospitalization is another problem that comes up when a city goes to war industrially. Marion has taken steps to solve that, too.

The city had already passed a bond issue to enlarge its hospital which now has a capacity of 55 beds. Now that the war industry is here, the city is putting that money aside, and instead, it plans to get government help in building a temporary enlargement.

Later, when its population and needs are definitely established Marion is going to use the bond issue fund and perhaps more to build a permanent addition to the hospital.

ASKS BOOST IN U. S. TAX BILL

Morgenthau Wants Billion and Half More; Cites Need For Huge Borrowing.

borrowing, we shall be protecting the future economic soundness of our country and our free institutions. To the extent that we fail, we shall be endangering the survival of all that we are fighting to preserve."

Compared with the house measure, Morgenthau asked new individual income taxes be boosted from $2,872,300,000 to $3,228,000,000; additional corporate taxes, including excess profits, increased from $2,589,200,000 to $3,347,700,000; revised excise taxes to be raised from $816,800,000 to $1,253,700,000; changes in estate and gift taxes to produce $316,100,000; and removal of "loopholes" to bring in another $601,500,000.

Of most importance to the general public, Morgenthau requested a scale of personal income tax exemptions of $600 for single persons, $1,200 for married persons, and $300 each for dependents. The present law is $750, $1,500 and $400, and the house voted for $500, $1,200 and $400.

Under its scale of exemptions, the treasury estimated that 26,900,000 individuals would pay taxes next year, compared with 15,000,000 under present law.

Aides said the treasury's specific corporate tax proposals were undergoing slight detail changes, but would be based on a 90 per cent excess profits tax, with the last 10 per cent of the tax rate to be refunded after the war.

Morgenthau also asked again for new excise taxes on soft drinks, candy and chewing gum, and increased rates on beer, wine, cigarets, gasoline, oil, and transportation. He opposed a new tax of 5 per cent on freight and express voted by the house.

The secretary reiterated requests for mandatory joint income tax returns by married couples, repeal of percentage depletion allowances for oil companies, and repeal of income tax exemptions on interest from state and municipal bonds. He asked for the taxes in the name of the president's program to hold down the cost of living.

"Taxation," he said, "does more than supply money to finance the war. x x x Wartime taxation also plays an important part in preventing rapid and continued increases in the cost of living.

EXPECT AUTHOR TO SURRENDER

Federal Authorities Seek Woman on Conspiracy Charge.

CHICAGO — (U.P.) — Federal authorities expect Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, anti-Communist author of "The Red Network" and a prewar isolationist, to surrender today on charges of conspiracy to damage the morale of the country before and after declaration of war.

Mrs. Dilling, Dr. Donald Judson McDaniel and George Otto Brennerman, all of Chicago, were among those named in indictments returned by a special federal grand jury in Washington which has been investigating seditious activities.

The case against Mrs. Dilling and the two men was reportedly based upon the alleged printing and distribution of cartoons before and after Pearl Harbor which were described as derogatory of the nation's armed forces.

STUDIES CURBS

FDR Seeks Advice On Means To Control Inflation.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Roosevelt carefully canvassed his wartime powers and sought advice from both labor and management today in an effort to learn whether additional, urgent curbs in inflation could be imposed speedily without new legislation.

It was reported that he had arranged conferences with Attorney General Biddle to study steps he might take independently to control rising costs of living under authority of the two war powers acts and the basic price control law, as well as his authority as the nation's commander-in-chief.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, JULY 23, 1942.

It's a queer nation that takes time out, right now, to argue all over again whether a baseball can be curved.

The question is again being asked, "Why don't THEY do something about it?". The proper pronoun is "WE".

It is interesting to note that General Grant and General Lee tanks are working side by side in Egypt—which must sound quite strange down Alabama way.

War's Great Cost In Lives

WARS cannot be fought without great sacrifice of human lives, and it is known that losses on both sides have been running high in Russia, China, and in the invaded countries of Europe.

Report of American losses thus far, however, brings this tragic element of war much closer home than mention of casualties in other fighting forces.

A point of difference in conditions, from those in the first World war, is seen in the vastly greater number of Americans who are reported as prisoners, or missing, of which more than 25,000 are listed by army and navy, whereas only 4,500 of United States forces were recorded as "prisoners or missing" during seventeen months of American participation in World war I, in which our mobilized forces totaled 4,355,000.

In comparison with losses in other countries, those of the United States may be considered light, but they are not "light" when each of those 4,081 killed, 3,218 wounded and 36,124 missing, is individualized rather than grouped in statistics.

For the first World war records show 8,538,000 killed and more than twenty-one million wounded, including all nations involved, or almost half of the total mobilized forces of the Allies and Central powers.

Such a tabulation emphasizes the importance of an all-out effort to shorten the present war as much as possible—so that the slaughter will be no greater than absolutely necessary to attain victory.

This should also have a retarding effect on strikers and on any others who are intentionally or thoughtlessly hampering the national war effort.

Shuttle Planes Establish Record

SPEED with which men go flying around these days is more than most minds can grasp. Here, for instance, is a civilian airplane crew of two Americans and two Canadians which has established a record of crossing the Atlantic five times in nine days in the same Liberator plane, flying freight or passengers or both on each trip.

After the two and a half round trips, the crew took three days' rest in Britain while the plane was being overhauled, then flew back to the Canadian port ready to start over again. This crew has done more than 500 hours of trans-ocean flying in the last ninety days. There were eight trips to and from Australia.

The men and their plane go shuttling back and forth over the seven seas with as much unconcern as the dinky train which used to go up the spur from the main junction and back again.

Tulips Portray Forbidden Flag

THE STORY of the underground forces fighting the Nazis in occupied countries, when it is finally told in fragments larger than those it is possible to hear at present, will be one of the most amazing and thrilling of all the tales of history. It can never be told in full because there is too much of it. But bits do leak out.

There is the one about the Czechoslovaks who routed carloads of finished munitions to Berlin and useless scrap iron to the Russian front. There are the Norwegians who develop bad coughs when Nazi faces appear on movie screens —boos being forbidden.

And—trust the Dutch to think up things like this—there are the flags of the Netherlands growing all over Holland in tulips. The tulips bravely and cheerfully raise the flag as high as they can above the ground. Their planters await the day when the flag may fly again from the tops of the flagstaffs of all the Netherlands.

Labor-Saving Letter Writing Idea

HERE'S an idea for people whose families are scattered and who wish to be spared the monotony of writing the same information in possibly a half dozen individual letters.

It was put in use by a mother who has one son in service, two sons in college and two daughters living outside their home city.

She types one letter in which she gives all the general news, making enough carbon copies so that one can be sent to each of the children, and on the other side of the sheet she writes whatever she desires to tell that particular one.

This, of course, requires use of a typewriter, but it is a time-saver, and the idea is adaptable to many variations.

Enclosure of clipped items of interest from the home paper is also a happy thought, in instances where the entire paper is not being regularly sent.

Cosmetics Yield To War's Call

SERIOUSNESS of war is being brought home to the fair sex by new government regulations for lipstick, nail polish, face powder, rouge, cleansing lotions, hair lacquer, skin fresheners, bleaching creams, cosmetic stockings, bath salts, mascara, perfume, toilet water, theatrical make-up, and so on. Production of such materials this year has been running considerably ahead of last year, and their severe restriction may be a rather devastating blow to those who have depended unduly on artificial beautifiers.

Men, as well as women, however, will be reassured by the generosity of an otherwise stern government, permitting the continued use of baby powder, shaving cream, tooth cleansers and talcum, which are said to contain no "critical materials."

It is remarkable how closely cosmetics in general are related to war materials. There may be some deep philosophy hidden there.

Fliers grounded on South Pacific islands report the cannibals there have become reformed—and may soon be sending missionaries to Europe.

Time also changes similes, and "as useful as a fifth tire" seems to have supplanted "as useless as a fifth wheel."

STABILIZED, BUT NOT FOR LONG

Reasons for 'Re-Election Blues'

—By JOHN GROVER

RANCOROUS Congressional dogfights over the new tax bill and farm price legislation mirrored an acute case of pre-election jitters in congress.

Fair-minded political observers find much to sympathize with in the plight of congressmen faced with tough re-election contests this year. The troubles that beset them are only in part their own fault.

Most significant single factor in the farm price battle was, of course, the administration's late but effective "big stick" crackdown that defeated the united farm front. It is strong indication that the administration, reluctantly but definitely, is committed to a firm anti-inflation policy despite the determined effort of the farm and labor blocs—the two most powerful pressure groups—to win price and wage concessions.

* * *

BASICALLY, the congressional schism stems from the divergent beliefs of incumbent congressmen over the most effective vote-getting techniques in the coming elections.

There's nothing reprehensible in a congressman wanting re-election, and bending his best efforts to win another term. Any congressman worth shucks seeks to represent his district to the end that he will be returned.

This year, the electorate is confused by the magnitude of the war effort. The "safe" old rules for re-election haven't their peacetime force. One group of congressmen, mirroring the widespread uncertainty, is nevertheless clinging to the old system. These recoil in horror from levying excessive taxes, and are willing to "go along" with the powerful farm, labor and other organized pressure groups as anchors to windward in a stormy political sea.

The other group is committed to the belief that war's upheaval has abrogated the old rules, and that the people are demanding a bold, aggressive legislative program to prosecute the war effort. These do not shrink from tax proposals which would be regarded as suicidal in a peace time election year. They are willing to defy the powerful pressure groups in the belief that the unorganized mass of potential voters will support anti-inflationary laws designed to put the brakes on a runaway war economy.

* * *

CONGRESSMEN are in a tough spot. This congress and the one before have been in almost continuous session since Jan. 3, 1939. They've worked harder than congressmen ever did before, and in consequence have lost touch with the home folks.

Congressman Luther Patrick of Alabama, admittedly an able representative, was defeated in the June Alabama primaries. When he returned, he took the floor for 37 minutes to tell the boys about it. What he had to say scared many a congressman pea-green.

That loss of touch with the home community is really an unfair handicap to congressmen. Patrick said he was accused of "going high hat" because the pressure of defense business had kept him away from home so long. Others accused him of dereliction of duty for coming home for a brief campaign while congress was in session.

He warned other congressmen that the pensions-for-congressmen bill got a very sour re-action around the country. Patrick opposed the measure from the start, but his people ignored that fact and blasted the daylights out of him in resentment against the pension plan. The congressmen who unwarily accepted unlimited "X" cards when gas rationing was invoked also are in for a hot time, Patrick said.

* * *

HE ALSO listed other complaints of the electorate as: (a) Failure to enact "a tax program we can depend on;" (b) Failure of congress to see to it that the people are fully informed on the progress of the war effort; (c) "Lag and drag" in congress on prosecution of the war.

Don't think congressmen didn't take it to heart. They now know that the pension plan and "X" card acceptance were ill-advised. Many of them know that they've got to "get right" before they go home for their campaigns, to make records that will wipe out the impression of those acts, or face defeat.

Listen World!

'Calling All Women'

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU MIGHT as well know the truth. The usual inspirational treatise inspires only one reaction in me—to roll over and take a nice, long, refreshing nap. And then write something about dogs or prize fights. But at last I've found something that hits me, as well as you, where we live in these war days. It's a book by Keith Ayling named "CALLING ALL WOMEN" (Harper & Bros., publishers). And it's the most practical, readable treatise that I've seen on the subject.

Here, for once, is an author who doesn't get all frothed up over sex distinctions. He doesn't try to pretty-please the home girls or placate the lordly male. He sees clearly that there's a whale of a job to be done and that it is up to all citizens to do that job regardless of sex. He tells about that job as it concerns women, in all its ramifications—Red Cross, American Women's Voluntary Service, United Service Organization, Office of Civilian Defense, Civilian Air Patrol, etc. Each department, with all its duties, is described simply, practically, with an eye always to the average woman's main job of home-making. It does not urge women to ditch that main job or to blow her lid because she thinks she'd look irresistible in a uniform. But it does tell her how she can use her spare hours in national defense which she once spent gabbling over the back fence or dishing dirt over the phone to Maybelle.

And to Keith Ayling's everlasting credit be it said that he paints no pretty pictures. War is war and its grim urgency lies over every task he describes. He is writing to, and for, serious patriotic citizens, women who can take it, who will work hard and loyally, without whimpering, as any man. The others—the gabblers and sneerers and idlers that collect in hotel lobbies—he dubs "fur-bearing animals." Which should hold such tizzies for at least a momentary pause.

Incidentally, he voices some amazing and cheerful notions about our sex. Women spies, for example. Chances are you wouldn't entrust your most treasured secret to the girl friend, even if you are a women. And the male opinion of female reliability has been both noisy and notorious for ages. But listen to this:

"I remember vividly, too, after the last war, talking to the head of the European spy ring, whose experience went back to Russia before the Japanese war and who had worked for many nations. When I met him he was engaged in counter-espionage. I asked him why it was that so many women made successful spies, expecting to get the usual answer that it was because they were beautiful and because men were inclined to talk to attractive women. Instead he expressed other opinions. 'Women,' he said, 'invariably mind their own business and will never talk about their business — unless they are very foolish ones, and those are the kind we don't employ!'

"He told me, and I have no reason to doubt him, that in Europe at that time some of the best agents were women, and the kind of women who had never sat on the right side of a glass of champagne with a handsome young officer. 'If I want a secret kept and carried there is no better place in which to store it than in the mind of a reliable woman,' the old man said, with a knowing smile—and when the other side finally remove him from the scene in the days when Europe was outwardly at peace, such information that he had and dared not commit to paper was conveyed to the right sources by women.

"This has no place in a book of this kind except to suggest to the world at large that woman has been much libeled on the gossip front. In England woman agents are doing fine work in fighting the idle talker, among other things."

"CALLING ALL WOMEN." That's a great title for a book and it marks a great new era in human history, for Life is calling all women today, whatever their talent, wherever they serve. Women were never meant to be the decorative sex, pampered and temperamental or idle. And the average woman never wanted to be. Give her real work to do and she'll sink her teeth as deeply into it as any man, regardless of risk or heartache. Horrible as war is good things do come out of it. And one of the greatest things that is coming out of this war is the fact that the world is calling—AND WOMEN ARE ANSWERING.

Dangerous Shortage of Food May Finally Determine Fate of Russia

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

THE NAZI MENACE to Rostov-on-Don naturally increases the danger to Soviet Marshal Timoshenko's general defense strategy, but the capture of the city wouldn't in itself represent a disaster.

Rostov is situated on the right, or northern, bank of the great river Don. The line in which Timoshenko presumably will make a stand ultimately if the German advance continues will be along the left or southern bank.

The Don represents a formidable barrier to any advancing army, especially at its mighty mouth near Rostov. Therefore we needn't put the Hitlerites across it at least until they come to it.

Should the invaders finally force a crossing they would have Timoshenko's left flank in a precarious position. A more immediate threat is the possibility the Nazis may try to invade the Caucasus from the Crimea, across the Kerch strait, and thus attack the Russian positions on the Don from the rear. However, the Red defenses on the strait presumably are strong.

The Muscovites admit that they are outnumbered on their southern front, and I have been asked how this can be true in view of Russia's vast reservoir of manpower. The answer is that under conditions existing in this theater an attacking commander, on either side, generally can concentrate numerically superior forces on any restricted front, although his enemy has vast reserves. The attacker who is operating on an interior line, as is General Von Bock, has the advantage over his opponent, who must spread his defenses.

* * *

WHILE Soviet Marshal Timoshenko cooly manipulates his hard-pressed forces under the terrific assault of a million-man Nazi army at the gateway to the Caucasus, way up on the northern extremity of Russia's two-thousand mile front there is developing against the Reds another grave threat which is correlated with the southern offensive.

I am reliably informed that the Germans are concentrating heavy forces in Finland, preparatory to a major attack against the Soviet Arctic port of Murmansk. Hitler's hope is to make a quick conquest of this vital rail-head and thereby cut one of Russia's two remaining feasible lifelines to the outside world, the other being the cumbersome route through the Persian gulf.

To put it bluntly, our mighty Russian ally, with a sixth of the entire land space of the globe and with a diversity of resources which make it virtually self-contained, is drawing terribly close to a dangerous lack of supplies, both military and foodstuffs. The time may come when she will need bread from Uncle Sam.

Long ago when Hitler's effort to conquer Europe still was young, this column ventured the view that kernels of grain would have more to do with ultimate victory than would bullets. That's increasingly true. With the destruction of Europe's farm lands, and the severance of communications, the little kernel of grain is becoming a mighty factor.

* * *

THE ALLIED blockade of Europe has squeezed Hitler so hard that the chief reason for his present great offensive is to break through to fresh supplies. Unfortunately for the Allies, however, they haven't been able to retain exclusive use of this economic garrote, and the Nazi leader is struggling to fasten it about Russia's throat.

Marshal Timoshenko's task is more than that of preserving his armies from annihilation and preventing a Nazi breakthrough into the Caucasus. It also is to keep Hitler from cutting the Reds off from the vital supplies of southeastern Russia and the Caucasus.

Timoshenko's tactics for carrying out his herculean assignment apparently project a stand on the great bend of the Don river where it curves deeply eastward into the fertile steppes that guard the route to Caucasian oil and other treasures. But stand or no stand, every yard the Germans advance means the destruction of grain fields and other resources upon which the Soviet has been depending. This territory, and the Ukraine which already has succumbed to the scorched earth policy of the Reds, formed Russia's main source of breadstuffs.

Russia's supply problem is becoming more serious daily. Vladivostock already has been lost to us as a port through which to reach our ally. The route through Perisa is difficult.

There remains Murmansk, and to reach that our convoys have to battle for their lives against Nazi submarines, surface warships and land-based warplanes. And soon, if nothing interferes with Hitler's plans, we shall see him striking at Murmansk with a land force, hoping to cripple the Bolshevists.

Timely Editorial

Twelve Times As Much.

Taxes collected in the 48 states now total 12 times the taxes collected 25 years ago. War conditions and the necessity for saving the country at any cost do not explain this increase. For the curve of taxation began to rise sharply in 1915. That was long before the attack on Pearl Harbor. It was even before the World war broke in 1917.

It would take volumes, perhaps, to explain this terrific increase in the maintenance cost of state government in the 48 commonwealths. Even if fully explained, it would be difficult to understand. But if you are too busy to master the subject and digest the details, you might entertain yourself with this question. "Is state government worth 12 times as much to me as it was 25 years ago?"—Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City.

Times When Secrecy Is Justified

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Not for years has the newspaper fraternity been so divided over any question of public policy with respect to publicity as on this Nazi sabotage trial. It so happens that a great deal has been written on one side—that advocating much greater publicity than is being given—and virtually nothing on the other. So it may be worth while setting forth a few arguments on the side of secrecy.

This writer believes that there has been too much given out already! For example, several details in that story made public by the Coast Guard ought never have been printed, or even mentioned. One of the points made in the Coast Guard story was that the men had dropped butts of German-made cigarets. This was almost inexcusable stupidity on the part of the saboteurs, but can anyone really contend that this government ought to call the attention of the German Fifth Column command to this blunder? It is not possible that had this warning not been publicly given to the Germans another batch of saboteurs might have been caught because of this same stupidity?

There is a good deal to be said for the contention that every single bit of publicity about the whole matter is harmful—that it would have been better if it had never been announced that the men had been captured. The announcement informs the German high command of the sabotage efforts and almost everything it needs to know. It knows now precisely how many agents were captured, and WHERE—in short which ones they were—which missions are not uncovered as a result—etc.

* * *

EVERYBODY who is arguing for publicity assumes a good many things which of course may be entirely sound, but there is no way of knowing. We know that two parties of four each were captured. But only the Germans know whether there were only two, or whether there were ten parties.

If there were more than two, the Germans now know precisely and have known since that first announcement which ones escaped detection and will therefore be able to plan further movements much more intelligently than if no announcement whatever had been made.

It is a well-known fact that Germany is not handling arrests of spies or saboteurs in any such public fashion. Announcements are usually made AFTER the execution of the prisoners—not always then. It may be said that the United States is a republic, not a dictatorship, and that the public is entitled to know what is going on.

But this argument is admittedly not applicable to troop movements, especially to troop movements overseas. Why not? Obviously because publication of such information might endanger the lives of the troops involved. But similarly the publicity about these saboteurs is apt to endanger certain phases of our war effort, if not the lives of men and women working in them.

* * *

ACTUALLY the value to the enemy of the news of the capture of these eight men, with the places where they were caught, which identifies them perfectly to the German Fifth Column command, seems to be about the same as the news of the destruction of a submarine. But the latter news is carefully withheld. There has been a good deal of debate about it, but the policy was adopted by the British in the last war and has been followed by them and by our own government in this war. The only reason ever given is that if the Germans knew a certain sub had been destroyed they would replace it in that location.

How is that different from saboteurs?

Verdict of 'Guilty'

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ONE NIGHT last week dogs barked all through the valley. Far on the southern hill one restless animal would start a piercing howl and presently it seemed as if all the canine tribe had gathered themselves together for vocal practise.

Our neighbor's house dog who often sleeps on our porch ran down across the lawn in great excitement, until I stepped outdoors and called him back. For a brief time he lay, contented, beneath my window. When the barking on the hills became louder and more urgent, he bounded nervously to the east, across the garden, with ears alert and tail high.

Far into the early morning hours the howling confusion stirred the neighborhood. At times it stopped, then resumed more furiously than before, until it echoed from the slope.

Two days after this, along the southern border of the woods, I saw five turkey buzzards wheeling above the treetops. I watched them ride in graceful arcs around and around a central point. For more than a half hour they sailed above the trees with scarlet, woeful necks turned downward — noiseless as the air itself.

Next morning I roamed the hills toward the village, and returned through a neighbor's quiet woods, where a little rill always attracts me. Within fifty feet of the old rail fence along the wagon trail, a terrible stench began to trouble me. The carcass of a sheep was near the gate, and close by, the bleaching bones and bits of wool from another, longer dead.

I could not help but realize that the prostrate animal's swollen carcass was more alive than when it stood upon its feet. A gash torn in the side revealed that it teemed with maggots.

I walked on toward the gravel road, piecing together in my mind what for all I know may have had no connection except in my own imagination — barking dogs at night, turkey buzzards in caucus, the bodies of dead sheep.

NAZI ADVANCE SLOWED BY GUNS AND AIR FORCE

American-Made Bombers Help Check German Thrust Toward Caucasus.

German division was routed south of the city.

A new Russian surprise attack on the Leningrad sector also was reported. The Russians pierced the German lines in three places and captured an important place, repulsing an enemy counter-thrust and killing some 2,000 Germans.

Dispatches continued, however, to emphasize the German drive on the lower Don river, reporting that the enemy had rushed up large reserves, including artillery, and was re-grouping tank forces to renew the drive against Rostov and Stalingrad.

The Russians had been forced into new retirements after their biggest setback of the campaign and the Germans were pressing forward in hope of a decisive break-through when the plans went into action.

The Russians were reported resisting stubbornly in their new positions.

"Having occupied new and more favorable lines our troops can and must hold the enemy and inflict cruel losses on him," Red Star said in an exhortation to the army to stand fast against the German armored and infantry masses, backed by flame throwers and big guns.

Communiques revealed the latest developments on the flaming southern front.

After two days of one of the most ferocious battles of the war, the Germans thrust strong spearhead prongs to Novocherkassk, 32 miles northeast of Rostov, and Tsimlyanskaya, 115 miles southeast of Stalingrad and 100 miles east of Novocherkassk.

The Russians withdrew to new positions after they and the Germans had lost heavily in casualties in a battle in which both sides threw everything they had.

The noon communique reported a grand scale battle in which the Russians fought stoutly, hurling back repeated German attacks and wearing down the enemy forces by inflicting heavy losses.

At Voronezh the communique said, the Russians kept pushing the Germans back toward the Don river, and support by powerful artillery barrages, were forcing some Nazis into the river to drown. The Russians were taking prisoners, the communique noted, as well as killing hundreds of Germans in various sectors.

Rostov's position became critical as the Russo-German war entered its 14th month.

The Germans threatened a wheeling movement from Novocherkassk which would invest it, a city of more than 500,000 people in a key position at the mouth of the Don, on three sides.

Novocherkassk, capital of the Don Cossak country with 100,000 inhabitants, is situated on a plateau intersected by ravines and considerably more suitable for defense than the rolling steppe lands to the northeast around Tsimlyanskaya, whence the Germans were pushing toward Stalingrad on the Volga at the entrance to Asiatic Russia.

With the Rostov-Moscow railroad cut at several points on the line running northward through Voronezh and the Rostov-Stalingrad line broken by enemy advance to the Don at Novocherkassk and Tsimlyanskaya, Russian resistance could be expected only below Rostov.

It was assumed here that Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's army was withdrawing toward a new line, below Rostov, from the Donets basin to fight for the Caucasus and its oil, and to avoid encirclement.

The sole remaining practical means of communication from Rostov and the country of the north Caucasus south of it was over the Stalingrad-Caucasus railroad which runs between Stalingrad and Tikhoretsk, 90 miles south of Rostov, and there joins the Rostov-Babu line.

(It was thus indicated that Timoshenko probably was withdrawing his main army to the area just south of the Don, leaving a sacrifice force to defend Rostov which the Germans took last fall and had held briefly.)

(The Vichy Havas news agency reported today in a dispatch datelined "on the Russion frontier" that Rostov was encircled from the south and that the Germans had reached a point on the Don about 37¼ miles from Stalingrad. Havas said its report was unconfirmed.

(Havas said that about 100,000 Russians were pocketed in the Donets basin according to foreign correspondents in Berlin.

Hints British Plan To Aid Russia

LONDON —(AP)— Amid agitation on both sides of the Atlantic for quick establishment of a second European front to ease German pressure on Russia, Sir Stafford Cripps implied publicly today that the British government has some operation of this sort in mind.

But whatever is decided about a 1942 offensive, Sir Stafford, Britain's lord privy seal and house of commons leader, gave the house to understand that the government would not "entrust the secret even to 615 people"—the members of parliament.

Eden Discusses 'Future Peace'

NOTTINGHAM, England—(AP)—Sketching the outlines of the future peace "at one of the gravest hours of the war," Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said today that Britain is ready to meet and work with the United States in shaping the post-war world.

In a speech which was generally regarded as the most definite pronouncement of Britain's after-war policy that has yet been made by a British statesman, Eden said.

"With the United States, and other nations, we shall take our part in working for the development of a great world-wide civilization." He named three urgent problems of peace:

1. Complete disarmament of the aggressor powers.

2. Feeding of the starving populations.

3. Enabling the devastated, impoverished and economically undeveloped countries to restart their industry and agriculture.

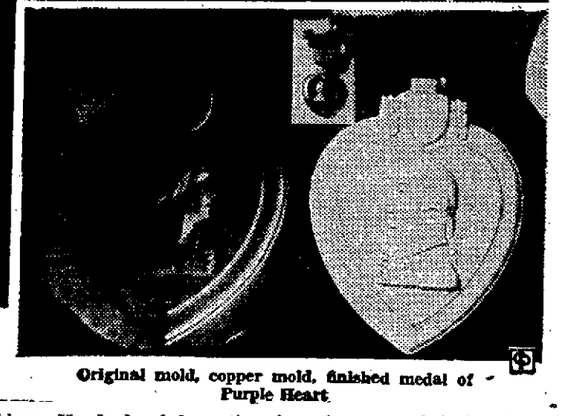
Army Distinguished Service Cross



Original mold, copper mold, finished medal of Purple Heart

Every war has its heroes, and the current conflict is no exception, so the United States government is busy turning out medals as well as bullets for the men of the fighting forces. The work is done at the United States mint in Philadelphia, where employes cut and press the various decorations and attach the ribbons. Hundreds of decorations have been awarded already to heroes of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. Before the war is over, the recipients will number in the thousands—including a comparative handful who will win the rarest of all, the Congressional Medal of Honor.

The transportation committee issued its warning to motorists after R. O. Richards, committee member and industrial relations manager for the Westinghouse plant, quoted figures showing that the average driver at Westinghouse had only 4,333 additional miles of travel before one of four tires on his car would have to be replaced.

Richards stated that a survey made by his company showed that the average driver goes at least 28 miles each day and that he can expect only 154 more days of use from his worst tire.

Eugene Porter, service manager for the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, who volunteered to coach the inspection of tires, said that Richards figures might be used as an average for the whole city.

Richards also said that his company had set up a zone system to help employes find "share-the-ride" drivers. Zone members will be given colored ribbons to wear along with their identification badges to help them to get acquainted with other zone members.

Porter said that it rested with the individual motorist whether his tires would take him the 4,333 miles set as an average. Careless driving at high speeds could cut this to 3,000 miles, he warned, while careful driving might extend it to 6,000 and even 8,000 miles. He blamed high speeds, and "jack-rabbit" starts and stops for the greatest damage to tires.

The committee decided that all industries employing more than 100 men will be asked to set up committees to decide which of their employes are eligible for tires and to certify their requests to the local rationing board.

To aid these sub-committees, the transportation board will recommend the employment by each firm of an auto tire inspector, who will not only inspect the tires of applicants but of all other workers in the plant.

The inspectors are to report on the necessity for new tires or a recapping process. Although the quota for tires is held relatively low—only 33 were alloted for July—recaps permits are expected to range between 250 and 350.

Bailey explained to the board that the "war-worker" tires have been produced to replace tires which can no longer be recapped. The "war-worker" tire reportedly has about 85 per cent of the wearing power of the regular tires now in use.

Bailey said that inspectors hired by the plants should be urged to have recapping done as soon as possible to prevent the loss of a tire carcass which could be saved by re-capping.

The rationing board secretary said that only war workers living outside of the city and pledging themselves to share their cars with other workers are eligible for the new No. 2 tire. He predicted that the No. 2 tire would soon be the only one available.

JAPS MAKE NEW DRIVE TO SOUTH

Gain Foothold on New Guinea Despite Heavy Attack By Allied Planes.

13,000 feet and the peninsula has some of the world's most inaccessible territory. There is no vehicular road between Port Moresby and Buna but only a few trails.

Port Moresby is garrisoned by Americans, including fliers and recently-arrived Negro ground forces, and some of Australia's hardest and toughest fighters.

If the Japanese strike across Papua at Port Moresby it will be to erase an obstacle to invasion preparation above the Torres strait, narrow waterway between New Guinea and Cape York, Australia's northern-most extremity.

The occupation of Gona mission was the first Japanese occupation of any southwest Pacific territory since March 10 when they seized Finschafen, 60 miles north of Lae.

Observers here believed their landing was made under cover of planes from Lae which, with Salamaua, has been the target of repeated Allied air raids.

U. S. Bombers Disrupt Jap Supply Base

CHUNGKING —(U.P.)— American bombers have disrupted operations at the Yangtze river town of Kiukiang, main base of supplies for the Japanese armies in southeastern China, a communique from the headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell indicated today.

The railroad, river and highway terminal 90 miles north of Nanchang was raided in force Monday night and Stilwell, commander of United States forces in China, announced that the bombers had sunk two river boats totaling perhaps 4,000 tons at the Kiukiang docks.

Australians in the north, South Africans, New Zealanders and Indians in the center and Britons in the south struck suddenly in the dark hours of yesterday morning. At dawn Allied planes went out to support them.

By mid-afternoon they had made gains all along the 38-mile front extending down toward the Qattara depression. The Australians in the north had won the entire Hill of Jesus ridge.

In the center the South Africans, New Zealanders and Indians made progress at the western end of the Ruweisat ridge where the Germans had clung to a foothold.

Stockholm Hints Rommel Wounded

STOCKHOLM—(U.P.)—Sources in contact with Berlin hinted today that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel might have been wounded when British planes destroyed a German Fieseler Storch plane behind the Axis lines in Egypt July 12.

They said that Rommel had not been mentioned in Axis reports of the African fighting in 10 days and that he might not be in personal command. Informants added that it was unlikely that if he had been killed the news would have been suppressed so long.

CHAPTER IX

Laughing couples were leaving the floor — the orchestra players were relaxing, wiping the mouthpieces of their instruments.

Gordon was smiling when Morley and Cora stopped dancing.

"Brad," gurgled Cora, "I want you two fellows to shake, and be friends."

"How do you do? Delighted," said Gordon. Morley held Gordon's hand in his left for a moment, motionless, then released it as one releases a trigger, saying, "Excuse my left hand, my right one has been hurt. Cora's told me all about you. That was a clever stunt you two worked up for my benefit. I mean that story about your eloping with her tonight. Cigaret, Mr. Lewis?"

"Thanks, yes."

Morley snapped open a heavy gold case, on it a large "A. M." monogrammed in diamonds. Morley drew forth his right hand from his pocket where he had been hiding it.

"A bad accident to your hand?" inquired Gordon.

"Electric drill nicked it right in the palm. It's been slow to heal. I can use the fingers a little. But it hurts."

"You be careful of that," warned Cora. "Go see a doctor."

"Yes, my dearest darling," murmured Morley laughingly, as with care he tucked the hand back into his jacket pocket of his chalk stripe suit. "I hear you're from the east, Mr. Lewis. What brings you out to these diggings?"

"Magazine story, local color, the people of Denver. Perhaps I could write you into one of the stories. Would you like that?"

"That's very nice, thank you. Guess I wouldn't make interesting reading, though."

"I think you would," said Gordon. "You Westerners are open and frank; clean like the snowfields, open as the valleys. People back East like to read about you. The real American, the outdoor Americans."

"Thanks for the compliment," chuckled Morley. "You overrate me."

* * *

They sat down at a table and were silent for a while, Morley looking steadily at Gordon from eyes that looked like two round stones under cold water — two stones flecked with green. Then Morley looked at the pink table lamp. Gordon kept his eyes on Morley.

"Brad's a hundred per cent, Cliff. Take it from me you can tell him anything he wants to know," said Cora and got up. "I'm going to my dressing-room for a few minutes to change my dress. I'll be right back." She brushed the back of her hand against Morley's tanned cheek, Morley laughed and blew her a kiss.

"Save it," she taunted. "You know me—the real stuff."

"Grand girl, Cora. Bright as quartz, but not as hard. I take it she's talked about me."

"Nothing but," Gordon nodded. "Madly in love, I'd say."

"Then you know how we stand. She's my girl. There are no other claims. I have an exclusive."

"That's O-kay with me," said Gordon. "There's no argument about it."

"I want to thank you for being so friendly to her while I was gone," Morley added dryly.

"She told me the second day I knew her that a fellow had already planted a claim on her heart, and that she was waiting for that man to come back. Nobody else has a chance. I give you my word on it. I never interfere when a man has sole right to a girl."

For the first time Gordon heard Morley's voice ripple low and pleased: "Glad to hear you say it, Mr. Lewis. Let's drink to it. They still have some excellent Chateau Rothschild. You know, I thought you might give me a little trouble."

With that, he signaled to a waiter who presently brought a holder and silver bucket.

"Mr. Lewis, want to be a millionaire?" inquired Morley as the waiter loosened the cork. "Just invent a bottle cork that says 'Mom' instead of 'Pop'."

Gordon smiled politely, feeling that Morley was trying to be pleasant, and almost succeeding.

* * *

Cora joined them. They toasted her as Scheherazade, goddess of red jade, Princess of the Persians, lovers' dream, and the best strip dancer of the Great Muddy Water.

Morley hurled his glass against the side of the wall of the Gold Nugget. "No other lips shall sully the glass that toasted Cora Leroy."

When Cora and Morley wound arms tight around each other Gordon volunteered to go.

"Well, I'd better rush away and leave you sparkers alone. This is your first night together, and here I've been in the middle of it."

"O' course, O' course, Brad me boy. Good-bye, good-bye. I'm not leaving for Chicago tonight. I'm going by plane some time tomorrow . . ."

Morley's head was wiggling, but his eyes were sharp. He turned for Cora to approve the statement. She studied the saturnine face, the thin high nose, the expressive forehead and the dark hair thinning at the temples.

Gordon blessed them both, pledged eternal friendship, and wound his way out the rear door to the starlit night.

Morley and Cora soon afterward disappeared behind the velvet draperies that led backstage. Morley swaggered, deep in his cups, struck a pose, kicked open Cora's dressing-room door, circled her waist with his left arm, lifted her up to his shoulder and carried her inside the feminine arbor, the room warm and heavy with the scent of her.

"Don't let me go, honey," she whispered in his ear as he lay her down on the couch. He sat on the edge of the couch, looking at her, twisting the cinnamon ringlets around the fingers of his left hand, tugging at them, smoothing out strands of them and trailing them across her nose and eyelids.

"Cliff, why didn't you write to me? God, how often you break my heart. First you tell me you have to go to South America on business—and you'll write me to come down there and we'll be hitched. That made me so happy, lover, you'll never know. Then the letters, mailed from Rio, swearing you wanted me and I believed it. You sure write scorcher letters, honey.

"Then I saw the Double Jackpot springing into action and found out the money was coming from a cut-glass baby out in Long Island and that you'd double-crossed me and married her. No wonder I was sore at her and told her I'd plug you and her, and I meant it! Tell me, Cliff, daddy darling, you didn't really love that dame, did you? Be honest with me!"

"No. But she was wild about me, and she showed it! But she's not the tiger you are. You're mine and no other woman will ever come between us; no sir."

"That's so—that's so! And no one better try," she warned him.

"You're fire and ice, Cora. It's your kind of love I need. Love that comes beating down everything in its path, like a prairie fire . . . or a plague."

"You're lit up, like a chandelier," cooed Cora, placing both arms around his neck and drawing him closer, saying, "And I like it. What would that Audrey of yours do for you? Look, I'll show you what I'd do for you."

* * *

She seized a book of matches, lit one, then lit them all. The cluster of them spurted fiercely into yellow flame. She was ready to put her arm into the flame. Her face was drawn thin and tight, but Morley aware of her idea, quickly snatched her arm away just as the flame scorched her. He rubbed her arm with cold cream from a jar muttering, "You damn idiot!"

"An idiot that adores you," she whispered.

His kisses were hot. She turned her eyes upward, persuasive, her body yielding.

"C'mon Cliff, let's go home."

He wrapped her tan, white-buttoned topcoat about her and led her out the rear passageway to the parking lot.

"No, let's walk, Cliff. I'm so happy I want to skip the sidewalks. It's only a few blocks."

"But I want to get there quick—the two of us, alone." They romped to Morley's car.

He pushed her in; she fell face forward. When he climbed in the other door she was laughing.

He tried shifting the handle on his steering wheel with his left hand; then tried his right and winced with pain. The car rolled out the drive, sped down a deep hill, burrowed into the darkness ahead.

The car stopped abruptly. There was a moment of silence.

* * *

"Cliff!" Cora screamed at the sight of blood oozing from the side of his forehead. He cursed her dispassionately, ending with, "Dammit, you women are all alike. Why in hell don't you get your directions straight. Pick this stuff off my face."

With her handkerchief, she dried the blood on his skin.

"Thank God," he said, "I'm not blind. It must have been the jolt of the steel frame of the window. How are you?"

"Okay, Cliff. Tie this handkerchief around your head. Here comes a car; I'm going to stop it."

A police patrol car drew up beside them. Two bluecoats fumbled with first aid, then sat Morley and Cora in the rear seat of their own car and raced off to Willoughby hospital. Morley refused to let the sympathetic interne stitch the wound, but let him close the flesh with a metal suture until a practiced medico should arrive.

They waited in a private room for a Doctor Burns, Cliff stretched out on the white metal hospital bed, smoking. Cora sat at his side, holding his hand.

Aged Seaman Has Survived In 3 Ship Torpedoings

LONDON —(INS)— John Porteous, 67-year-old British seaman is a man who specializes in cold baths.

Three times during the past year he has taken a plunge in water that would make most seamen decide to buy a chicken farm in Missouri or a grocery store in Montana. The first two times he was torpedoed off Lisbon where he says "the water was cold but not icy." The third time was on the Arctic supply route to Murmansk.

Of that bath he is certain "it's the coldest I ever took. I was on a cargo-ship headed for Russia when a submarine broke through and torpedoed us. The ship sank in less than one minute.

"If the Navy hadn't been so quick on the job I'm sure we should have been frozen on some of the ice packs floating around. Since then I've looked on a cold morning shower as a hot bath. I don't ever want to go swimming in the Arctic again."

Budget-stretching is a fine art . . . and one that we all must learn. It will be increasingly vital to the "Thrift and Savings for Victory" program of which we are all a part.

One way to stretch budgets is to know all there is to know about quality, in order to select the things that will give us the longest service. We must make things last—to put off the need for replacements as long as possible.

Another way to stretch the budget is to watch every newspaper ad with a sharp eye. An advertisement like this, for example, is full of things the thrifty shopper will appreciate.

Venezuela Acts To Conserve Its Stock Of Tires

CARACAS, Venezuela—(INS)—It's only tire factory closed for lack of materials, Venezuela is taking drastic steps to preserve automobile tires.

A new ordinance in this city prohibits taxis, trucks and public transports from using the road to nearby La Guaira without special permission.

Several large commercial and industrial firms have already changed working schedules to provide for a short lunch and an early closing. The government offices are expected to follow suit shortly, the change being designed to discourage people from going home for lunch. At present, government employes work from 8 to 12 and from 3 to 6. The new hours are expected to be 8 to 3 with a half-hour for lunch.

There are no restrictions on the use of private cars and gasoline has not been rationed. The government's attitude is that the people have been warned they will not be able to get new tires and if they waste the rubber, it is their own concern. Trade in bootleg tires is brisk. One can purchase a 600x16 tire for about Bs. 250.00 ($75.00) which is 30 per cent above list price.

Marines Crossing Pacific Enact Equator Rites

Though bound for the South Pacific war zone light-hearted United States Marines remember to observe the traditional "crossing the line" ceremony as their ship crosses the equator. King Neptune, lord of the sea, is duly honored as "pollywogs" (first time equator crossers) become "shellbacks" or veterans in a general rough house. Picture shows a Marine officer getting dunked in the ship's pool during the shellback ceremony.

LEARNS TEETH CAN BE SAVED

Cleveland Physician Claims Teeth Need Not Be Extracted.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND — After more than 40 years of investigation, Dr. S. Marshall Weaver of Cleveland has obtained what is believed to be the first convincing laboratory evidence that properly-treated devitalized or "dead" teeth can be retained indefinitely in humans without ill effect.

His findings in the highly-controversial field have not yet been published but were cited by the Western Reserve School of Dentistry as evidence of the character of research pursued by dental graduates.

Dr. Weaver said that "the general belief that devitalized or abscessed teeth cannot be saved has caused millions of teeth to be extracted unnecessarily."

He cited a comparison showing that the biting strength of full upper and lower dentures is but 35 pounds, against the 200 pounds exerted by normal molar teeth.

Devitalized teeth, he said, often are extracted as a precaution on the orders of physicians puzzled by the origin of various maladies, even when there is no certainty that the teeth are at fault. He claimed that some abscesses and infections at the roots of teeth sometimes cannot be detected even with X-rays as long as the teeth remain in place.

Dr. Weaver had opportunity to make microscopic and other examinations of some 50 devitalized teeth he had treated, some as long as 40 years. The teeth had been extracted on physicians' orders.

He found that no one of the teeth showed signs of infection. On the contrary, all the teeth showed the formation of new bone and normal tissue covering the root ends, a rebuilding which cannot occur in the presence of infection.

Besides providing a much better biting quality than false teeth, Dr. Weaver said that "properly selected devitalized teeth" should be retained to "insure anchorage for bridges and partial dentures to increase their efficiency."

Dr. Weaver concluded in his investigations that "all infected teeth should be either treated properly or extracted, but all infected teeth do not have to be extracted."

Haile Selassie Had Unique Set Of Draft Rules

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. —(INS)— Prominently displayed on the desk of Colonel Robinson Hitchcock, Indiana selective service director, is a card on which is written the highly simplified draft regulations of Haile Selassie.

The Lion of Judah, when Mussolini attacked his country, issued the following uncomplicated ukase:

"Every man able to carry a spear will come to Addis Ababa to fight.

"The blind, the lame and those too young to carry a spear need not come.

"Married men bring their wives to cook for them.

"Men without wives bring any available woman with them."

ALLIED AIRMEN DESTROY 300 JAP WARPLANES

Victories Since April 1 Giving General MacArthur Air Lead In Southwest.

(By International News Service)

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—United States airmen cooperating with Australian fliers have destroyed more than 300 Japanese warplanes in the southwest Pacific and damaged at least 200 others since April 1, it was learned today.

The totals are based on 100 communiques issued by Gen. Douglas MacArthur since his dramatic arrival in Australia last March and his subsequent command of the air, sea and land forces in this Pacific war bastion.

An unofficial total of almost 200 twin-engined Japanese bombers have so far been blasted by American and Australian fliers, while nearly 100 of the Jap Zero fighter planes have been downed in combat over Port Moresby, Darwin; North island and the Japanese bases at Lae, Salamaua and Rabaul.

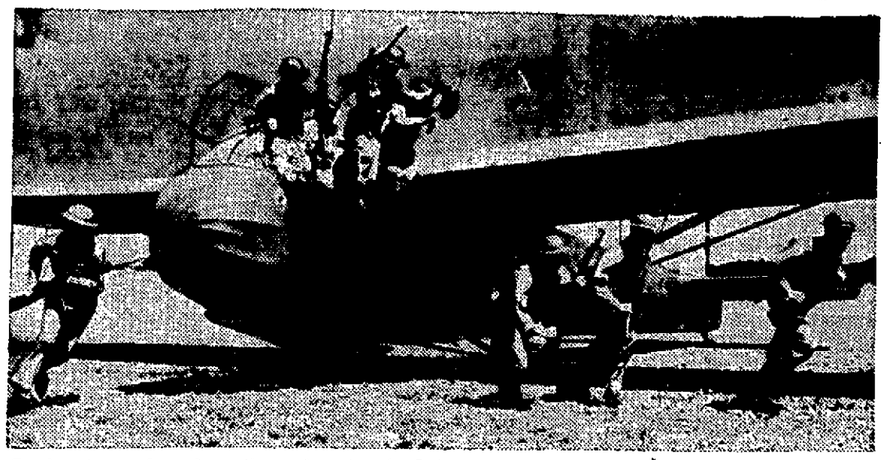
As against this, United Nations losses have been far below those sustained by the enemy, it was emphasized at general headquarters. The exact figures are a military secret.

General opinion among well-informed United Nations air officers is that United Nations' fliers are securing air superiority everywhere in the southwest Pacific. On every count, it is declared, MacArthur's sea forces have stolen the initiative from enemy units opposing them in the treacherous tropical seas bordering New Guinea, New Britain and Australia's coasts.

Basing figures on headquarters communiques—respected by newsmen for their consistent reserve in estimating enemy losses—it would seem safe to assume that at least one-tenth of Japan's Dec. 7 combat air strength has been knocked out, while, as the result of the Coral sea victory, at least one-seventh of Japan's carrier strength has been destroyed. The Coral sea victory was due, incidentally, to the major role played by MacArthur's air and naval forces.

Combined air and naval operations also have resulted in the sinking of seven Japanese submarines and the damaging of three others. It is estimated that nine Jap merchantmen have been sunk and 14 transports and cargo vessels probably sunk or seriously damaged.

Army Tests New Glider for Combat Duty



Combat troops leap from the nose of a nine-place glider after it had been safely landed in a test in Ohio. The army is testing this new form of motorless plane which can land troops without detection because it flies on air currents alone and has no noisy motor to betray its presence.

Unique Traditions Have Been Set Up By Glider Pilots

CONDOR FIELD, Twenty-Nine Palms, Calif. —(INS)— A strange new branch of warfare is bound to produce a strange new brand of traditions, and such is the case with the "Fraternal Order of Condors"—the fast-growing corps of lean, keen-eyed young men learning to pilot glider planes.

Already two traditions have been accepted into the daily life of these men who, in the not distant future, will pilot great silent birds of the sky, each large enough to carry 15 fully equipped fighting men with light cannon and machine guns.

The happiest tradition of the two is the "dunking" in the cool waters of the field's swimming pool each glider pilot receives following his first solo hop. Not only is the fledgling glider pilot thankful to have completed his solo successfully—the refreshing, though enforced, plunge is a welcome relief from the desert heat!

The other tradition marks the trainee who pulls the "boner of the day." Around his neck is draped the "Anderson trophy," a hangman's noose which he must wear until his successor of the following day is selected.

Every member of the Fraternal Order of Condors is looking forward anxiously to their first anniversary celebration. They've even selected the "convention city"—Tokyo!

ASKED FOR IT AND GOT IT

PASADENA, Cal. —(U.P.)— Film Actor Onslow Stevens, arrested for speeding, asked to have his license suspended. He explained to the court that between bad traffic and the scarcity of tires, it was the only way he could keep his friends from asking him to take them places. The court was accommodating to the extent of six months.

MAGIC STRINGS OF MISSIONARY PUZZLE CONGO

Engineer Builds Power Plant, Natives Call Wires 'Magic Strings.'

(By United Press)

SARATOGA, N. Y.—An American missionary has brought civilization to an area deep in the Belgian Congo by using his college training as an engineer to build a hydro-electric power plant. The natives call the wires "magic strings."

In letters to former neighbors, Dr. George W. Carpenter explained how he brought light and power to his Baptist mission at a small settlement near the Congo river.

The reaction of the natives to the first radio reception was:

"Oh, it is the white man's magic, very wonderful."

Dr. Carpenter was the only white man in the force which built the plant. Equipment supplied by the International General Electric company was carted over primitive roads to the site in a trailer built by the missionary.

The ground work was accomplished through elementary methods, he said.

"All the earthwork was done by pick and shovel and wheelbarrow, all the drilling of rock by plain bar and sledge hammer, and the blasting by time fuse."

A canal several hundred feet long was constructed with a waterfall of sufficient height to operate the generating station. A cut through a hill, composed mainly of limestone and shale was made, some of the stone going into the construction of the generating station.

Rails from an abandoned spur were used as poles for the electric transformers. Within a few months after arrival the equipment was delivering light and power to the church, school, hospital, residences and other buildings.

Said one woman of the mission: "Tata Carpenter put all this machinery and these strings here and made lightning move in them. And now, out of these same strings come heat for the toaster, and cold in the refrigerator, and water from the spring, and light in the nighttime and voices out of this box. Truly it is wonderful—all from the same strings."

Dr. Carpenter and about 60 Af acifon,fm teseonh uu-, Africans, none of them familiar with such work, finished the job. He said several were good carpenters and mechanics and masons.

The men had to learn all the mechanical and electrical aspects of the work on the job. The foreman, he said, is now in charge of the plant as operator and caretaker.

Now Dr. Carpenter is in demand as a consultant for similar plants at missions throughout the Belgian Congo. He was graduated in civil engineering at Union college in 1921.

He completed theological training at Rochester Theological Seminary and in 1926 went to Africa subsequently receiving a doctor's degree at Yale University for a thesis on educational methods for African natives.

Besides conducting his Baptist mission, Dr. Carpenter is secretary of the Protestant Council of the Congo, composed of representatives of many denominations. He also finds time to instruct the natives in lumbering, plumbing, and laying out whole communities.

Army Technical Command Keeps U. S. Planes Flying

KNOLLWOOD FIELD, N. C.—(INS)—"Keep 'em Flying" is more than a catch phrase to the Technical Training Command of the Army Air Force which provides the mechanics and highly skilled technicians necessary to keep America's fighting craft in the air.

The purpose of the Technical Training Command has been to train in a minimum amount of time the maximum number of airplane mechanics and technicians, with this objective as one of the major requirements for victory, the Command has, in less than a year, expanded from a handful of Army bases to a vast network of more than 50 stations and schools, webbed around a streamlined headquarters at Knollwood Field, N. C.

Private civilian mechanic schools were incorporated into the Training Command as auxiliary training units. Almost every large city in the nation has one or more of these "air institutes" that are now important adjuncts to the Technical Training program.

Recently 20 leading aircraft manufacturers producing combat planes and engines for the Air Forces have organized post-graduate classes in their factories. Graduates of the advanced mechanics courses will now have an opportunity to study the latest developments under the guidance of the aviation industry's engineers.

Nazis Encounter Silent Sabotage In Channel Isles

LONDON—(INS)—News reaching London tells of the silent sabotage which is taking place in the Nazi-occupied Channel Islands, where the Germans are said to be meeting with stiff resistance in their attempt to force the people to speak German.

A number of the Nazis were recruited from the Reich and sent post-haste to Jersey and Guernsey when it was found that the local teachers were having a strange lack of success in getting their pupils to learn the most elementary words of German.

Even this failed, owing to the influence exercised on the children in their homes. Then bribery was tried.

Prizes of extra rations were offered to the parents of children who could prove that they spoke German to the children at home. To the surprise of the Nazis there were no claimants.

Recently the children were given little mirrors with a picture of Hitler on the back. Next day the Germans had to organize special squads to gather up the mirrors from the streets and beaches. The islands were strewn with the discarded gifts.

TRICKS WOMAN

KEWAUNEE, Wis. — (U.P.) — When one buxom lady refused to give her weight at Luxemburg's recent sugar rationing registration, the registrar used a little practical psychology.

"Well, I'll have to put something down," he remarked. "I'll make it 210."

"It is not 210," the lady declared coldly. "It's only 205."

Says Industry Will Use More Women and Boys

DENVER —(INS)— Greater use of boys and women in war industry is predicted by L. A. West, director of the United States Employment Service in Colorado.

The number of skilled and semi-skilled workers has dropped so alarmingly, that it will become increasingly necessary to draw on teen-age labor sources, West said.

The file of applicants with 28 local employment offices in Colorado has slid to approximately 37,000 workers, nearly half of the average monthly total for the past year, despite intensive efforts, he said.

To offset the labor shortage, especially on farms, West said Denver high schools will supply thousands of workers and the part-time services of five in-school co-ordinators to aid the Employment Service through the Occupational Adjustment Center.

West said Colorado's "youth army" is well prepared to meet the labor shortage but stressed that if the need arises a voluntary registration of women might be undertaken.

NEWS is what keeps a newspaper going. And it's primarily what keeps people going through a newspaper...page after page, front to back.

Anything which does that is good news for advertisers...for the more intense the interest of people in a medium, the greater the advertiser's opportunity to attract attention through that medium to the things he has to sell.

Because the newspaper is so full of important, timely news...news about happenings in other parts of the world, in various sections of the country and in our own home town...it has won for itself an intensity of reader interest that no other medium can match.

And because advertising itself is news...news about products and services...the most natural, the most productive, place for it is the newspaper.

Like all other parts of the paper, newspaper advertising is seen and read by people actively interested in new happenings, new ideas, new products. Today, when news-interest is at such a high pitch, the newspaper is naturally a more vital and profitable advertising medium than ever.

CRAMPED OLD SHIP 'MOTHERS' BIG FIGHTERS

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of stories by Keith Wheeler, Chicago Times' correspondent in the Aleutian islands, and the first accredited correspondent to reach Alaska.)

By KEITH WHEELER
(Copyright, 1942, Chicago Times)

ABOARD U. S. SEAPLANE TENDER IN THE ALEUTIANS —(Delayed)—The wind is a wild 70-knot gale hurling whitecaps across the bay, and tonight no planes will be in the air—neither ours nor the Japanese.

The battle of the Aleutians is not yet over. The Japs are still in Kiska.

But tonight it's all right to relax a little and consider how things have been with this unglamour little tub and her brood of lumbering PBY Catalina flying boats.

She's a little ship, old and cramped. Once she was a four-piper destroyer but they ripped out half her power plant and used the former firerooms to store extra food, aviation gas, bombs and men. Then they sent her out to nurse the Cats.

Not even her most charitable friend could call her a warship. She's no more a fighting ship than are the 15-ton flying boats she serves. But the war has produced no more valorous chapter than the stubborn fight the Cats and the tender are making against the first invasion of American soil since 1812.

The little tender lay in Dutch Harbor on June 3, when the Jap raiders paid their first visit.

It was there she received her baptism of fire, and when a Zero caught a Cat on the water and burned it up the tender's crew saw the first of her charges destroyed—a heart-breaking sight, to be repeated more than once in the savage days that followed.

(One paragraph censored.)

When the Japs went away, they left three planes shot full of the tender's machine-gun fire and burning on Mt. Ballyhoo's flanks.

In the days that followed, the Catalinas flew ceaselessly up and down the island chain in the eternal miasmic fogs. And where the Cats went the tender followed.

Once in her uncharted wanderings I am told she caught a Jap submarine on the surface. She stopped long enough to drop four depth charges and saw the crushed undersea boat rise to the surface, roll over and sink.

(One paragraph censored.)

In time the PBY crews were haggard wrecks and their planes weren't much better. Whenever a plane cracked up in the serf, bleary-eyed repair crews stripped off its usable parts to patch planes shot to tatters by the Japs.

At one time quite a few hulking planes were basing on the little tender. Men took two-hour turns in her unmade bunks and then were routed out to fly their reloaded planes to Kiska — making room for other, weary crews. The tender's cooks served meals 24 hours a day. Mealtimes ran together and sometimes overlapped.

One PBY found itself shadowed by a faster Japanese four-motored seaplane. The Jap showed no disposition to attack and seemed willing to tag along forever. The PBY captain refused to go home and thus lead the enemy to his base. Finally he grew bored with waiting for attack and turned to attack the Jap plane. It ran away.

The time finally came when the tender and her Cats could no longer maintain their precarious location. They loaded the flying boats with the last of the gasoline, took aboard the villagers, two white men, one white woman and a dozen or so Aleuts, burned the village and pulled out.

Now, reprovisioned, refueled and ready for more, they're settled in another base, ready to fight or move without notice.

STORE REOPENS, CROWD ON HAND

Many See Modernized Grant Store, Visit New Department Long Before Noon.

With scores of visiting company officials and employes on hand, the newly enlarged and modernized W. T. Grant store at 59 North Main street re-opened its doors today after being closed to complete an extensive modernization program that added a new basement store to the Mansfield branch.

Hundreds of Mansfielders had visited the store by noon today and were directed to the various new departments by an enlarged force of sales people together with visiting assistant managers from approximately 20 other W. T. Grant stores throughout the state.

M. O. Boxwell, director of store operation, was expected here from New York City while C. V. Haecker of the New York display department had already arrived to give his stamp of approval on store arrangement.

A pre-view of the store was held last night, Alfred J. Moore, local manager, said for 75 visiting employes from stores in Elyria, Columbus, Newark, Norwalk and Portsmouth.

The new basement store devotes more than 2,500 square feet of additional sales space to house furnishings and men's and boy's wear. The latter department caters to every need of men and boys, whether for work or play, while the furniture department provides for the smaller needs of the home.

Fluorescent lighting has been installed on both the first floor and in the basement store to enable customers to see merchandise the same as they would view it in daylight.

The yard goods, drapery and curtain section is among the newly enlarged departments and is located in the rear of the store near the Walnut street entrance.

A three-day sale, continuing through Saturday, heralds the opening of the new store.

LOCKS PATIENT IN HIS OFFICE

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Patrolman C. D. Miller heard a beating from the inside of a door to a downtown establishment late in the evening.

He forced the door and the imprisoned man, who gave his name as Igolius Raines, 45, Negro, told the officer that he was a patient of a doctor at the establishment.

The doctor and his assistant forgot that Raines was in a consultation room when they locked up for the night and went home.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Clamour factory at war:

Not so many years ago a young actor came to town with a deep dark secret. Five secrets, in fact—his wife and four children.

Coons

He was launched as a romantic hero. As such, his name was inevitably linked in publicity with various of the town's romantic heroines. This made fair reading for the who-goes-with-whom departments, but nothing like the reading made when it was revealed that our hero really lived the life of a family man in un-Hollywooden Pasadena — his five secrets willingly staying in the background because a screen hero with four children might not cut a romantic figure.

* * *

THAT was the tale of Phil Regan. It harked back to the old days of pictures when movie heroes, or their bosses, considered marriage and children a deterrent to box-office popularity.

The tale comes back today with ironic chuckles. RKO, having seen about half its recent young men contractees receives long-term offers from the keenest talent scout. Uncle Sam, lets it be known that it is looking for male prospects who have bona fide dependents—in other words, for fathers!

A handsome papa may not have the pull of an eligible bachelor, but at least stands a chance of making a couple of pictures to repay the studio for its grooming trouble before Uncle Sam calls him for sterner training.

Meanwhile, despite the war's severe inroads on the ranks of leading men, the sound stages today do not begin to present the preponderantly feminine aspect which casting directors anticipate for the future. Yet the casting men are acutely aware that some of the broadshouldered handsomes are now wearing their last movie wardrobe for the duration, that others not yet called may be on the "unavailable" list six months, a year from now.

Chatter Corner

Mrs. Helen McIntyre, police record clerk, forcing laughter as she bids goodbye to her husband, Emmet, leaving with Wednesday's draft contingent . . . Ernest Fuller of the police identification bureau, saying farewell to Paul Martin, leaving the bureau for army service.

LONELY SLAYER GOES TO DEATH AT OHIO PRISON

Body of Canton Man, 48, Who Killed Daughter, Remains Unclaimed at Pen.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — Buffert Ray Doney of Dover, lonely and shunned by his family since he murdered his 23-year-old daughter, died last night in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary believing that "I guess I earned anything I had coming."

Doney, 48, died exactly eight months from the day he committed what the state described as "one of the most deliberate and heinous murders" in the history of Stark county. His execution left the prison death house vacant for the fifth time in 45 years.

He entered the death chamber at 7:58 p. m. accompanied by two guards, the prison chaplain and Rev. Smith. His face was expressionless and his hair tousled as he sat calmly in the chair and waited for guards to fasten electrodes to one leg and the top of his head.

Dr. John B. Eckstorm, chief medical officer at the penitentiary, pronounced him dead at 8:09 p. m.

Doney originally was sentenced to die June 2 for the murder of his daughter, Mrs. Almeda Whitmer, on Nov. 22. He was accused of accosting her on a downtown Canton street after a family argument and forcing her at the point of a gun to accompany him to a secluded spot where he shot her to death.

He contended he was drunk at the time of the shooting and when a confession was obtained from him. An appeal to the state supreme court for a review of his case failed.

In his last hours in the death house, Doney ate a huge meal and prayed. He ordered chicken, mashed potatoes, noodles, sliced tomatoes, Swiss cheese, custard pie, ice cream, milk, coffee, cigars and cigarets for the traditional last meal.

Warden Frank D. Henderson said he asked a fellow prisoner to share the last meal.

Henderson said that during the five months Doney was in death row he was never visited by his wife, Jeanette, or his 26-year-old son, Stanley. He received no mail and wrote none, Henderson said.

The body was not claimed.

RAPS GOVERNOR

Knisely Says Defense Effort Run on Patronage Basis.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Clarence H. Knisley, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, today accused Gov. John W. Bricker of "dallying in the political pansy patch" over Ohio's participation in the war effort.

"He has chosen people to run the state's war effort entirely on the basis of politics and patronage," Knisley declared. "The general public was barred from participation in the defense program and only Republicans with blocks of Bricker votes were allowed to be patriots."

He said that as a result Ohio's scrap rubber drive "had to be a failure because the common people of Ohio were not invited to participate."

CONVICT DIES IN LONG LEAP

Plunges From Water Tower After Slaying Michigan Prison Employe.

(By United Press)

JACKSON, Mich — William Tomczik, 46, life-term convict at Southern Michigan prison, leaped to his death from atop a 160-foot water tower today in sight of guards whom he had held at bay with a knife all night after slaying a prison employe.

Tomczik, serving a life term from Detroit for the bludgeon slaying of his former employer, a junk yard operator, in an argument over a repair bill, ran amok in the prison power plant early last evening.

He lunged at Andrew Faust, 65, an operating engineer, with a hatched, struck him on the chest and then slashed him with a knife. From the power plant Tomczik ran to the tall water tower in the prison yard and clambered up a narrow catwalk to the top of the reservoir.

Guards were unable to climb the tower ladder while the prisoner held the top with his hatchet and knife.

He climbed inside the tank and Warden Harry Jackson ordered it filled with water, forcing him to take new refuge in a shed near the hatch at the extreme top of the reservoir. There he was beyond reach of even the tallest ladders brought in from the Jackson fire department.

Shortly after dawn Tomczik appeared at the extreme top of the reservoir and hurled down his hatchet. He still was clutching the knife when he leaped to the ground, a suicide.

STORY OF ENGLAND'S WAR TOLD EFFECTIVELY IN 'MRS. MINIVER'

By KEN WOODMAN

"Mrs. Miniver," the much talked-about novel by Jan Struther, was previewed in its screen version last night at the Ohio theater by members of the Mansfield clergy, News-Journal employes, and public school principals.

Unlike most war pictures which rely on horror and holocaust scenes to produce their effect, "Mrs. Miniver" brings home its message with quiet humor, homely scenes, and the quiet terror that can mount in the minds of those who see their loved ones caught in an implacable conflict.

Teresa Wright and Richard Ney provide the necessary romantic touch and Walter Pigeon as "Mr. Miniver" turns in an exceptionally human performance.

Two unusually good bits of character acting are done by Dame May Whitty, as the village noblewoman, and Reginald Owen as the bellringer and flower fancier

Although the story runs only a brief course from the declaration of war to the mustering of boats for the evacuation of Dunkirk it catches the whole spirit of England at war and includes such exciting sequences as the capture by Mrs. Miniver of a Nazi flier.

HEARING SET

Gas Station Ordinance To Be Argued Tomorrow.

Fate of Mansfield's new ordinance limiting the operation of filling stations to 72 hours a week is expected to be decided at a hearing at 10 a. m. Friday in Richland county common pleas court.

A temporary restraining order, granted June 30 by Judge C. H. Huston, has held up enforcement of the ordinance which was to have gone into effect July 7.

The Standard Oil company of Ohio seeks a permanent injunction against the measure, contending that the city's attempt to regulate gasoline stations is "unconstitutional and unjustly discriminatory."

The stipulation, setting forth certain facts which have been agreed upon by the plaintiff and defendant, has been filed today in common pleas court. City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner said the agreement would help to shorten tomorrow's hearing of the case on its merits.

COUNSEL FOR BOTH SIDES ASK DELAY

Seek To Realign Cases After Three Spies Take Stand In Own Behalf.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The secret trial of eight Nazi saboteurs before a military commission in Washington was delayed for a full day today as the prosecution and the defense sought time to realign their cases after three of the spies had taken the witness stand in their own behalf.

Herbert Haupt, 22 of Chicago, the youngest of the eight saboteurs on trial, was the first to take the witness chair to try to talk his way out of the death penalty. He was reported to have been followed by George John Dasch and John Edward Kerling, two more of the German agents.

Dasch was the leader of the group of four spies who landed on the Long Island shore from a German submarine, and Kerling was the "fuehrer" of the other four saboteurs who landed on the Florida coast.

At the end of the 13th day of testimony, the seven generals composing the military commission conducting the trial announced that the trial had been recessed until Friday at "the request of counsel."

Up to that time, according to the commission, three of the spies had testified in their own behalf. Five defense witnesses also were called, including Mrs. Gerda Melind, attractive 24-year-old Chicago widow who once knew Haupt.

Mrs. Melind rushed from the courtroom with tears in her eyes after she testified. The young Chicago widow knew Haupt from the time that he left high school where he had studied with the ROTC until the time that he walked around Chicago in a storm trooper's uniform of the German-American Bund.

Mrs. Melind was brought to Washington to testify against Haupt. A dramatic highpoint of the trial was reached when she left the courtroom in tears. Another Chicago witness against Haupt was Mrs. Agnes Jordan, whose son, Larry Jordan, has been missing since the Japanese overran Bataan Peninsula in the Philippines.

Mrs. Jordan related to the court that Haupt had tried to use the name of her hero son when he returned to Chicago. She also told how her son once had beaten Haupt with his fists after Haupt had appeared at a neighborhood party in Chicago in the uniform of the German-American bund.

It was learned that the prosecution hoped that the defense could complete the job of calling the other five saboteurs to the stand tomorrow, and that closing arguments could be concluded on Saturday, so that the spies would know by next week what punishment they could expect, and possibly, be executed some time next week.

Raps Two Ohioans For 'Campaigning' On House Floor

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Two Ohio congressmen, contesting for the state's lone "at-large" seat available next year, were criticized by a colleague for carrying their political battle to the floor of the house.

Representative Keefe (R., Wis.) asserted both Ohioans were "using the house as a sounding board," intending to "have their political speeches franked and mail them by the thousands at public expense."

Keefe's remarks yesterday followed statements by Rep. Stephen M. Young (D., Ohio) in the house prior to Pearl Harbor.

"We want no isolationists in congress when the time comes to write the peace," said Young, "or we'll have to fight a war all over again."

Bender replied he thought it a "shame and a disgrace to inject politics into the debate of the house at a time when the minority is doing everything possible to cooperate in a successful prosecution of the war."

One of the state's two seats-at-large will be eliminated next year because of population changes.

Try Refreshing Juice

By DOROTHY GREIG

A breezy drink, tomato juice is not only cooling but rich in vitamins A, B and especially C.

Do you like to savor to the full, its sunny, fresh tomato flavor? Then simply serve it plain, well chilled. Or perhaps you enjoy it best with a flash of lemon juice, or in combination with other juices and seasoning. Many do.

To pass to friends in the garden or on the porch—or to that tired man arriving home from work—here is a particularly thirst-quenching and refreshing version.

Tomato Lemon Sherbet Float.

Fill a tall glass ¾ full with tomato juice. To it add 1 dipper or ball of this lemon sherbet.

Lemon Sherbet.

1 cup syrup (white corn syrup)
2 cups water
¼ teaspoon salt
5 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 egg white, stiffly beaten
1 tablespoon sugar

Combine lemon juice with grated lemon rind. Mix together thoroughly the syrup, water and salt and then add to lemon juice and lemon rind. Strain and put in refrigerator tray and freeze to a mush—then beat with rotary egg beater. Stir the sugar into the beaten egg white, fold this into sherbet mixture. Freeze—stirring once or twice while freezing so that large crystals will not form. Makes one quart.

Invitations Are Received From Two Chapters

Announcement was made at last night's meeting of the Women of the Moose, Chapter No. 47, of invitations that have been received from two other chapters. Galion members have extended an invitation to the Mansfield women to attend a class initiation to be held this evening in honor of Mrs. Irma Wenninger of Bucyrus, national conference leader. Some of the Mansfielders also will attend the dedication ceremonies at the new Moose home in Canton on Aug. 3.

Mrs. Helen Perry, senior regent, presided over the meeting and Mrs. Evelyn Harmon, retiring social service chairman, presented a gift to the chapter from her committee. A report was given by Mrs. Hazel Tupps, war relief chairman. Mrs. Nannie Lowman, recorder, gave the executive report and read the minutes of the previous meeting.

In a short talk on her recent trip through the east, Mrs. Millie Hans stated that she had visited the Women of the Moose lodge in York, Pa. A war stamp booklet, in the possession of Mrs. Myrtle Clements, is being filled by members of the committees.

Morbid Girl Finds Life Sad, Dull

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"I'm desperately unhappy. I realize that for all my years of life I have nothing, not even memories. I long for just one friend, but all of them are married and I do get tired of talking about other people's babies. I've always liked boys and girls, but somehow I never had much success with them.

"I like knitting and other handicraft, but I want more stimulating recreation than that. I long to go out, but there's no one for me to be out with. Everyone else seems to have so much more romance than I have. I don't feel inferior—just too modest, perhaps due to lack of assurance.

"Even at a time like this, when a girl can go out on her own, attend U. S. O. dances, and such, I feel that I am a trifle too old to participate. At times I feel like 18 and have to remind myself that I am ten years older than that.

"I dislike my work intensely—there's not enough to do during the day to keep me occupied. I want things for myself—my own home, family, silverware, fine china, my own way of life. Can you help me to help myself?

"N. C"

A good shaking, my dear, would help you immensely, and I'd like to administer it. Think of a girl at your time of life being depressed! This innate sensitiveness seems to have reached a degree where it's sheer morbidity.

You're not yet 30, an age where a woman should be at the very peak of her womanly power. Do you want an example? The Duchess of Windsor was older than you are when a king gave up his throne for her.

Read Marlowe's description of Helen of Troy, the loveliest tribute ever paid a woman: "Is this the face that launched a thousand ships and burnt the topmost towers of Ilium?" The lady was 40 according to chroniclers. I could fill a page with similar examples.

Stop being a mousey sort of person. Step out, be a "j'iner," meet new people. If possible, change your environment. If you have enough money not to become stranded, try a new city, a new job, make new friends.

Join one of the army organizations where you'll put on a becoming uniform and leave that sensitive personality behind with your old clothes. But don't do this unless you have enough of a nest egg laid by for the new adventure.

Use Airplanes To Patrol Vital Gas Pipe-Lines

NEW ORLEANS—(INS)—Patrolling of gas pipelines by airplane—a peacetime use for airplanes which is little-known to the average person—was outlined by C. B. McMahan, St. Louis gas company official, before a New Orleans convention.

Reports by airplane observers have saved the company's line from blow-ups four times in almost 11 years, and there has never been an interruption of service, McMahon said.

Some of the advantages of bird's eye surveys of pipelines, he pointed out, are these: It is cheaper than using boats; it gives a better view of general terrain than can be seen afoot or on horseback; discoloration of surrounding ground from leaks is easier seen from a height of 300 feet or higher than on the ground itself; "washes" in watery areas can be spotted better.

Furthermore, McMahan related the good-will value of such constant airplane flights through isolated country, especially since the pilot makes a practice of dropping off late-edition newspapers and used magazines at the farm-houses along the route.

Nearly 200,000 persons worked in petroleum and natural gas activities in the United States in 1939.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Something outside of my own knowledge, an intuition I had had for several days, backed my answer to Katharine's question.

"Yes, I'm sure he is safe," I said, although I could give her no proof further than what my father had just told her.

Certainly the astute Chief would not permit a person so vital as Jack to the government's safety, to disappear and run into danger without keeping informed of his whereabouts and safeguarding them that information.

"Look here, Katrina!" I said, purposely using the name Lillian, Dickey and I often substitute for her more stately cognomen, "as I told you, this is going to be a long story, and a good deal of the time you're going to be so angry at me that I'm going to hold on to my hair to keep it from being pulled out."

When I saw the wraith of a smile quirk her lips, I knew that she was rapidly losing her nerve-racking anxiety.

"Your hair will be safe," she said affectionately, "but tell me first who forged that letter."

"Presently, presently," I said, "but first I have to tell you something more important than that."

I hesitated before making a disclosure it was hard to put into words, then went on.

"Within the week I have seen Jack myself, Katharine, and have talked with him. He is well, and seems to have recovered completely from his old—inhibitions, shall I say? He loves you as much as he ever did—more in fact—and if he comes out of his present enterprise alive, his only thought is to make up to you for what you have suffered through him."

"Yet he has chosen not to write a word of that to me!" she burst out bitterly.

"But he has" I told her swiftly. "He has written you regularly all these years, diary notes every day, sent out in batches whenever the mails went out. He was as astonished as you are now to find out that you had received nothing from him.

"Neither has he received any letter from you in all that time. I told him how regularly you had written to him—but to his credit he did not believe the explanation of your silence given to him by the person who, my father and I believe, forged that letter to you."

She sat erect in her chair, and her eyes were hard.

"You mean Ruth Hayes, that 'wilderness woman,'" she said, and there was venom in her voice.

"None other," I said, "and Katharine—I never have known Jack to lie to me, and to me, who knew him so well, he could not camouflage his feelings. When I told him of that lying letter Ruth Hayes had written to you, his answer was something terrible.

"He told me then that he had never had any other feeling toward her than gratitude for the comfortable home she had made for her brother and himself in the wilderness, but even that had turned to aversion when she told him that story of your going to Hal Meredith in the hospital, with its implication that you meant to divorce him and marry Hal."

Watching her furtively, I wondered if she would let slip any indication of the secret hidden so deep in her heart—that of her real feelings toward her husband and toward Hal Meredith. I wanted desperately to know whether love or a high sense of wifely duty was actuating her in her present ordeal.

But I got no clue in her answer. She made an exclamation which put into words what might be the normal reaction of anyone to my revelation.

"What a fiend!" she said.

FISH STORY

ROCHELLE, Ga.—(U.P.)—Here is a fish story that James Scarborough, former Rochelle baseball player, brought back from his home town of Camilla, Ga.

According to Scarborough, Dodge county fishermen have dispensed with worms as bait. They drop oil of anise on their hooks. The fishermen claim that the fish come up to smell the sweet odor and get caught.

Scarborough said he has seen the baitless fishermen bringing home some big ones.

Give Child Lessons In Music Now

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

A few years ago I advocated in this column that many children who had received music lessons during the school year should continue their lessons during the summer for regular practice and some nervous, excitable children overworked in winter might limit their private musical training to vacation time. It isn't a good idea to discontinue music lessons any more than it is to stop going to Sunday school and church during the summer.

This year more children will stay at home, fewer will go to camps or on trips. Hundreds of these children should take regular music lessons and be required to practice for a definite period daily.

Very few of them will choose to practice, even with the best teacher. It is the responsibility of the parents to see that the child does practice about as surely as he breathes, if he is to make progress and grow in character.

Regular Practice Period.

After the beginner has mastered the few basic steps in instrumental music under the guidance of a good instructor, have him practice regularly. Let the practice period be for only ten minutes at first, once or twice a day, with gradually longer periods later. Except for very apt students far advanced in music skill, no child should practice for more than thirty minutes at a stretch nor for a total of over an hour a day. For some, even this will be too much for good mental health and learning progress.

What is most important is that practicing be done daily with a high degree of effort and care. Regularity of practice is the handmaid of good habit-forming, and therefore a good music-learning. For many a child, a definite number of careful repetitions of a section of music may prove far more valuable than so many minutes of practice.

A few mothers, not many, can profitably help the child at his music practice. Any one who is not calm and patient is unfit to aid the child in practice or to give him lessons in music or anything else.

Q. Are there some good books for an expectant mother to read?

A. Yes; you may have a selected list of such books by writing me.

Q. Can one earn college credits from a correspondence course?

A. Yes; from a number of State Universities you can earn at least a total of one year's college credit by completing home study courses with them.

Serve This For Supper Any Evening

By BETSY NEWMAN

Here is a menu that can be served in the house, on the porch or in the garden. You can cook the wieners in the house and take them out hot, or cook in the garden if you have the equipment. Make the salad and keep hot to serve. You can buy the potato salad in cans if you are a business woman and you haven't the time to make it.

Today's Menu.

Broiled or Boiled Wieners
Hot Potato Salad
Pickles
Radishes and Green Onions
Maple Sponge or Spice Cake
Coffee or Iced Tea
(According to weather)

Hot Potato Salad.

6 or 8 large potatoes
3 or 4 green onions
1 green pepper
3 or 4 slices bacon
3 tbsps. vinegar
Salt, pepper

Peel potatoes and boil until tender but not mushy, slice thin while hot. Cut onions and green pepper and mix with hot potatoes. Dice bacon and brown in frying pan, take bacon out and add vinegar, pepper and salt to fat in pan. Mix bacon cubes with potato mixture, and pour hot dressing over all, mixing lightly so as not to break potatoes. Serve hot.

Maple Sponge Cake.

1 c. cake flour
1 tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
1½ c. maple syrup
6 eggs, separated

Sift flour, measure and sift several times with baking powder and salt. Boil maple syrup to long thread stage, 238 degrees F. Beat egg whites stiff and yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add maple syrup gradually to whites, beating it in as added, and continue beating until mixture is cool. Fold flour, a little at a time, into the whites. Bake in ungreased sponge cake tin at 325 degrees F for 1 hour. Let cool in pan.

Spice Cake.

1 c. molasses
½ c. brown sugar
½ c. lard
¾ c. hot water
2 eggs
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. cloves
2 tsps. soda
¼ tsp. salt
2½ c. flour

Cream lard, cream in sugar, then molasses. Beat eggs and add to first mixture. Sift flour, measure and sift again with cinnamon, cloves, soda and salt and add alternately with hot water. Stir well. Bake in layers or loaf in moderate oven. Frost with corn syrup frosting.

Corn Syrup Frosting.

2 egg whites
1 c. corn syrup

Combine egg whites and corn syrup in top part of double broiler, stir until blended; place over boiling water and cook, beating constantly with rotary egg beater for 9 minutes, or until frosting will stand in stiff peaks. Remove from heat, add flavoring, beating it in. This is enough to frost 2 9-inch layers.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

TWICE IN SAME PLACE

Did you ever get squeezed twice in the same suit? As the declarer runs tricks on which you have to discard, he may cause you first to discard one card which looked like a trick winner, and then, as he lays down one more trick of his own suit, he makes you throw away another winner in either your previous suit or another one. That does not happen very often, fortunately. But gosh, how it hurts when it does occur!

	♠ 4 2 ♥ A 4 ♦ K 9 7 4 ♣ A J 10 5 2
♠ 9 3 ♥ Q 10 9 8 ♦ Q J 10 8 ♣ K 7 3	N W E S	♠ A Q 10 8 7 6 ♥ 7 6 3 2 ♦ 3 ♣ 9 6
	♠ K J 5 ♥ K J 5 ♦ A 6 5 2 ♣ Q 8 4

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ♠	2 NT	Pass
3 ♦	Pass	4 ♦	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♦	Pass
5 ♥	Pass	6 NT	Dbl

When North bid that 5-Hearts, after having used the Blackwood he did it with the idea of trying to make South sign off at 5-No Trumps, feeling that he had overbid his North cards. South refused to be signed off that way, as he was a player who likes hard contracts.

West led the spade 9 to the A. East, realizing from the lead that South surely could take the next two spade tricks, shifted to the heart 2, which brought the 5, 8 and A. Then South went to work. First he sent the club Q through, next the 8 to the 10, the A dropped the K, and two more clubs followed.

It was no job for West to throw his spade 3 on one of these and his heart 9 on the other. But then came his problem when the spade J was finessed. Throwing from his heart Q-10 was unthinkable, as it would set up South's probable J in that suit, so he gave up the diamond 8 from his four card holding, an apparent trick winner ultimately. Then on the spade K he had to throw another apparent winner, though it made little difference what he did now. He picked the heart 10 this time, and the declarer finished with two heart tricks and two top diamonds. If West, discarding on the spade K, had used one of his three remaining diamonds, the declarer could have scored the A, K and 9 of that suit plus the heart K to finish the hand.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ 9 3 ♥ A Q ♦ A Q 9 4 ♣ K J 5 3 2
♠ A K J 8 7 6 4 2 ♥ 8 ♦ 10 7 6 ♣ 4	N W E S	♠ Q ♥ K J 10 9 5 2 ♦ 5 2 ♣ Q 10 9 7
	♠ 10 5 ♥ 7 6 4 3 ♦ K J 8 3 ♣ A 8 6

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

If the heart A, diamond A and diamond K take the first three tricks, what simple logic should dictate South's next play in an effort to beat West's 4-Spades on this deal?

HOROSCOPE

FOR FRIDAY, JULY 24

Rather anxious and difficult situations are likely to develop on this day, according to the lunar aspects. With sound conservation as well as some straight thinking these adverse circumstances may be successfully and happily composed. A brilliant idea or the introduction of an amiable, friendly and generous impulse may accomplish much, rather than a subtle or direct gesture.

Those whose birthday it is may convert menacing or uncertain situations into successful issues by clever, shrewd and sagacious management, and friendly approach rather than subtlety and finesse. It is possible that an elderly person or an old institution may prove a helpful intermediary.

A child born on this day should be fairly successful by its cleverness, stability and sincerity. Its friends will be found among the elderly, from whom should come benefits.

U. S. ARMY SEEKS HOMING PIGEONS

SELLSERVILLE, Pa —(U.P.)— Members of the North Penn Homing Pigeon club here are finding their peacetime hobby is proving a vital aid to the war effort.

Forty pigeons, trained by the club, have been requested by the U. S. army for the signal corps training station at Camp Claiborne, La., and Corporal Clarence Stull, a former member of the group, wants as many more birds that can be spared for breeding and training for army maneuver work.

The club reports that the U. S. army was the first to develop two-way flight of homing pigeons through a secret method.

Bathing Is Treatment For Beauty

MME. QUI VIVE

When your great-great grandma was a girl the word "cosmetic" was not to be spoken above a whisper. One's fair face was not to be touched even by powder, though we have heard tell that the cornstarch box was raided occasionally when the nose got too ruddy. As for factory blushes, one dab of rouge and you'd be hustled off to the pillory.

Of cosmetic value is the daily bath. It keeps the surface of the body in prime condition, proves wonderfully ornamental to the complexion, promoting color and texture. The rousing old scouring with warm water, a bland soap and a heavy brush serves more purposes than keeping the epidermis clean—it imports a sense of well being and self respect. It performs as a vitalizing agent upon glands, urges surface blood to travel. It soothes sizzling nerves, makes them tranquil.

Nothing equals a brisk shower as a pickup treatment after a day of warm weather and frantic activities. And we are active these days, to the last lazy bones among us. Knotted muscles relax. Fretfulness and fatigue fly away. One has a feeling of refreshment.

To understand the beneficial effects of scrupulous cleanliness one must realize that the skin constantly undergoes a system of decay and renewal. Dead cells are being shed, new ones are appearing. A state of mild dermatitis goes on all the time. Skin is renewed by the layers beneath it. It fluffs away in flour-like particles. Friction, combined with soap and water, aids this natural process, makes the skin soft and pliant. The texture of clean skin is bound to be finer and of better coloring if the daily bath is a habit.

In twenty-four hours the surface area of the body gathers considerable debris — not only dead cells, but atmospheric dust, oil sent out by the sebaceous glands, salty liquids excreted by the sweat glands. All that will become odorous, if not removed. Body odor is, in rare cases, caused by glandular disorders; the average case is lack of cleanliness of body and garments.

The daily bath is an influence in the treatment of acne and excessive oiliness of the skin. By stimulating the circulatory system it puts roses in the cheeks.

FAIR or FOUL

By LAWTON CARVER
INS Sports Editor

Pinch-Hitting for Rex Hess, Sport Podger.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—At this time, when the major league pennant races are getting all heated up and spikings and dusting duels are become prevalent, the officials are on the alert for infractions, but not to the extent of getting upset every time a ball player is tossed out of a game. As a matter of fact, when somebody gets the bum's rush in the National league it is taken more or less as a matter of course by President Ford Frick, if the recipient of said bum's rush from an umpire goes quietly and does not create a scene.

* * *

Asked point blank what the official attitude toward fellows like Frankie Frisch, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and Jimmy Wilson, who holds similar rank with the Chicago Cubs, President Frick said, in effect, that he had no attitude.

* * *

And that isn't to indicate that he is encouraging or will tolerate rowdyism. They mustn't get too fresh with the men in blue.

"But," as President Frick said, "in the heat of a tough game there are bound to be flareups of temper and, if a manager or a player, calms down reasonably and leaves quickly no harm is done in kicking him out of the game."

Whenever disciplinary action from the league follows such a blowoff it is the result, nine times out of ten, of the baseball gent's conduct in getting himself shooed, chased, ejected, banished and sent away.

* * *

"I have to look at all these things a little differently than the spectator," President Frick said. "For instance, a ball player sometimes is kicked out almost as soon as he opens his mouth, and another time a player might seem to be ranting to his heart's content.

* * *

"As a matter of fact, the player who gets it quickly generally has done or said something to bring about sudden action on the part of the umpire. The manager who seems to be holding up the game with a long harangue may be arguing over a rule and with far less heat than he seems to be generating."

What brings all this on from President Frick was my curiosity over what seems to be more banishments than usual of late. It seems as though every time you pick up a paper Frisch or Wilson has been sent toddling to the clubhouse.

President Frick doesn't think there has been any more of this than is usual at this time of the year when the National league characteristically is stirring up its usual dog fight among two or three clubs clustered for the run to the wire.

* * *

The troublesome gent in such situations is the manager who persists in hollering and waving his arms, and inciting the fans. The fellow who won't leave the field and le the game go on without first nearly creating a riot. (Incidentally this is me talking now and not Frick.)

Take a manager like Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, for instance. He is called "The Lip" for good and adequate reason—he doesn't know when to keep quiet and several times has caused considerable more confusion than seemed warranted under the circumstances

He's fighting hard for ball games, squabbling and hollering and winning pennants. But he could do all that and still lose nothing by quietly going on his way when the umpire finally gives him the thumb.

Once you get that, you can paw the dirt, and holler and throw your cap away and get the fans started to throwing things on the field, but you're still out of the ball game and you haven't done a thing to help your cause.

NIBBLE HANOVER MAKES FIRST START

In the same race here a year ago, Nibble Hanover set a world's record for consecutive trotting heats by stepping the first trip over the Kite in 1:58¼, the second in 1:59 flat.

Red Sox, Tigers Hit Slumps

Boston, Detroit Hit Skids With Long List of Losses.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(AP Sports Writer)

ALL the people who for weeks devoted themselves to trying to solve the slump of the New York Yankees probably are busy now figuring out reasons for the sliding of the Boston Red Sox and the Detroit Tigers.

* * *

This is a thankless task, but nevertheless a form of endeavor in which there never is any unemployment. Somebody always is in a slump and right now both the Red Sox and the Tigers have it bad. Boston has lost four in a row and nine of its last 11 games. Detroit has dropped 11 out of 14 and has fallen from the first division.

* * *

The Red Sox were shut out 2-0 yesterday by Lee (Buck) Ross of the Chicago White Sox who allowed five hits.

The Tigers were tamed 2-1 by the Washington Senators on the five-hit hurling of Sid Hudson.

* * *

Meanwhile the New York Yankees squeezed to their 11th consevutive victory and extended their American league lead to 12 full games by blasting across four unearned runs in the tenth inning to beat the Cleveland Indians, 5-1.

* * *

Joe DiMaggio's hitting streak was stopped at 18 games by Lefty Al Milnar. Atley Donald's nine-hit hurling was bolstered by four double plays as the Yanks boosted their total to 125 for 91 games.

The St. Louis Browns blew a 6-0 lead attained in the first four frames and lost an 11-8 decision to the Philadelphia Athletics.

* * *

In the National league, the Brooklyn Dodgers disposed of the Cincinnati Reds without trouble, 5-1, with Kirby Higbe pitching five-hit ball and he and his teammates tagging Ray Starr and Gene Thompson for twice that many.

* * *

This kept the Dodgers six and a half games ahead of the St. Louis Cardinals, who slammed out a 7-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phils, who were unable to score on ten hits off Johnny Beazley.

The Chicago Cubs evened their score with the Boston Braves in the day's other game as Claude Passeau pitched a masterful two-hitter for a 2-1 verdict. It was Passeau's 14th triumph of the year.

Salesbook Leads League at Shelby

SHELBY—The Shelby Salesbook team took the lead in the second round of the Shelby softball league by defeating the Ohio Seamless Tube company, 9 to 1, last night at the municipal water company field.

Both teams had been undefeated and were tied for the lead in the league The loss put the Tube company into a tie for second place with the Autocall Plant 1 team.

Lee Hazelwood, on the mound for Salesbook, gave only four hits. Hazelwood will leave in the near future for the United States air corps Felter and Doty hit home runs for Salesbook in the game.

Mauriello Trails Louis Victims

NEW YORK—(U P)—Tami Mauriello of the Bronx, stiff-punching young Italian heavyweight, continues operations against victims of Corp. Joe Louis tonight at Madison Square Garden, hoping that victory over Red Burman of Baltimore will bring him a step nearer a September title tilt with Corporal Joe.

Burman was kayoed by Louis, just as were Mauriello's last two opponents—Tony Musto and Bob Pastor. Mauriello won an easy 10-round decision over Musto and held Pastor to a draw in one of the year's major upsets.

Promoter Mike Jacobs, resuming boxing operations at the garden after a two-month lapse, will match the Mauriello-Burman winner with Lee Savold of Des Moines, probably on Aug. 21. The victor of the latter scrap will meet Louis in September, if the army permits Joe to defend his crown.

CARD SCOUT GIVES SELF PEP TALK ON DRAFT

NEW ORLEONS —(AP)— Wid Matthews, St. Louis Cardinal baseball scout, was greeted at Pelican stadium here by Vincent Rizzo, head usher, with a draft notice in hand.

"The boy had a long face," said Wid, "and I immediately gave him a pep talk, telling him what a good thing it was to be called upon to serve his country. He let me talk, and when I finished, he said:

"'Thanks for wishing me good luck, but this letter happens to be from your own draft board.'"

HELPS COACH ARMY TEAM

NEW YORK —(AP)— Cliff Battles, assistant football coach at Columbia university, has been granted leave of absence to assist Major Wallace Wade in coaching the All-Army football team's western squad, it was announced today.

SAVES JOB AND GAME WITH CANTON VICTORY

DAYTON—(AP)—Right-hander Carl Keeter was so sure he'd pitch Dayton into third place in the Mid-Atlantic league last night that he vowed he'd quit baseball if he failed. He stayed on the roster by hurling a 6 to 2 victory over Canton and dropping the Terriers to fourth in the standings.

Springfield downed Erie, 7 to 3, in a game highlighted by Manager Walton Alston's homer with the bases loaded in the fifth inning. Charleston blanked Zanesville, 6 to 0.

Dean Picked To Stop Yanks

Champs Take 10-Inning Game on Indian Errors.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Chubby Dean was picked today to test his skill in answering that all-important American league question . . . who can stop the Yankees?

Al Milnar did a noble job of holding the New Yorkers in check yesterday, but two Indian errors in the tenth inning enabled the Bronx Bombers to push across four runs and capture the game, 5 to 1, for the 11th straight victory.

Ernie Bonham was picked by the visitors to make it seven in a row over the Redskins.

* * *

While Milnar's loss was a heart-breaker for the Tribe, the locally-bred southpaw halted Joe DiMaggio's string of consecutive games in which he had hit safely. Joe, seeking No. 19, collected two outfield flies, an infield pop-up, and a walk, and was hit on the foot by a pitched ball.

* * *

Rollie Hemsley caught the whole game for the Yankees last night, collecting four hits in five chances.

Charlie Keller opened the scoring with a home run in the second session, but the Indians tied it up in the seventh inning when Les Fleming singled Keltner home.

Oscar Grimes, who had played every other infield position for the Indians during the year, had his first chance at shortstop when he replaced Peters in the ninth inning. After two were out in the tenth, Tommy Henrich singled and DiMaggio got his walk. Then Grimes drew two errors when he fumbled Joe Gordon's grounder and followed a quick recovery by throwing wildly at the plate as Henrich scored.

That was enough for the Yanks to win, but Keller was passed to fill the bases and Phil Rizzuto singled to drive in two more tallies. Hemsley plated Keller with his second double of the day, and the scoring ended.

Indians to Play Night Double-Bill

CLEVELAND — The first big league double-header ever held at night in Cleveland will take place Friday night when the Indians clash and the Washington Senators clash in a twilight-night bargain bill at the Stadium.

The twilight-night program opens a five-game series with the Senators which the Indians are hoping will enable them to continue their dogfight with the Boston Red Sox for second place in the American league standing table.

Following the twin bill Friday night, the Indians and Senators are scheduled for a single game Saturday and another doubleheader on Sunday. All five games are to be played in the Stadium.

Friday night's program will start at 6 p. m. with the second game scheduled to begin no earlier than 8:45, the regular starting time for night games. Saturday's single game will start at 2 p. m. while Sunday's double-header starts at 1:30 p. m.

North Lake Scores 48 Runs To Take Junior Contest

The North Lake Park juniors swarmed all over the Brinkerhoff team last night in a YMCA junior league contest last night at the Johns park diamond, but definitely.

The North Lake team piled up the amazing score of 48 runs, putting over 12 in the seventh inning and 13 in the ninth. In the meantime, they held Brinkerhoff to four runs.

The only other junior league contest was a wide open affair but failed to approach the mathematical proportions of the North Lake game. The Prospect Park Juniors downed the Johns Park Juniors at the latter's field, 13 to 10.

Favor Bivins Over Muscato

But Buffalo Lad's KO Punch May Upset Dopesters.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The odds are three to two that Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland will beat Joe Muscato of Buffalo, but if either of Muscato's two chances lands on Bivins' chin the payoff will be quick.

* * *

That's the experts' verdict as the boys reached razor-edge sharpness for their 10-round, light heavyweight leather-throwing at the Cleveland Arena tonight.

* * *

Muscato puts every one of his 187 pounds into climax punches, one of which kayoed Lem Franklin in the first frame of their fight here last month. Franklin stopped Davis in nine rounds a while back, but since then Franklin has been bouncing off the canvas and Bivins has been learning rapidly.

MARRIAGE SETS NEW TURF RECORD

CHICAGO — (INS) — Marriage, formerly a humble $1,000 plater, today held the record for the fastest mile and quarter ever run on a turf course in America—2:02 2-5.

The six-year-old gelding, trained by Hirsch Jacobs until picked up by R. A. Coward in a $5,000 claiming race last fall, set the new record yesterday in winning the $7,500 grassland handicap at Arlington park.

Westinghouse Ends Season With Spotless Record

The Westinghouse team maintained its spotless record as leader of the national league of the YMCA softball tourney last night by rubbing out the fourth-place Art Rattan team, 13 to 6.

In another national league contest, the Tappans, holding the second spot, rung down the curtain on the cellar-team, Hughes Keenan, by an 11 to 3 score.

The victory for the Westinghouse team was its ninth for the season. Geiger and Baker held the Art Rattan batters to four hits while the Westies blasted out 16.

Curry, Tappan third-sacker, led his team's attack with three hits and a walk, scoring four times.

Tam O'Shanter Reels on

163 Pros, 64 Amateurs Continue in Chicago Opens.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Without much doubt the most confused golf tournament in history, the Tam O'Shanter open and amateur, unlimited, proceeded today into its fourth or completely unintelligible stage—the one just before they bring out the padded wagon and say, "Take it easy, pal, sure you're Napoleon."

On today's program, as someone explained it, was the first 18 holes of the Tam O'Shanter $15,000 medal play open. Also scheduled were two rounds of match play in the all-American amateur championship, these being third and fourth rounds of this particular championship. The man who explained this disappeared before his name was obtained, but his version may be taken as fairly authentic.

George S. May, president of the Tam O'Shanter club and the man who thought up all the strange events, said that was his general understanding of the situation, too.

Looking back somewhat dazedly upon everything that happened yesterday at Tam O'Shanter, there's only one thing you can be sure of—there was lots and lots of golf.

The amateurs battled each other all over the layout for 14 solid hours and a couple of hundred professionals took qualifying swings.

Today, 136 professionals began battling for $2,500 first money in the 72-hole open championship. The 16 surviving amateurs from yesterday's shambles tied up in two match play rounds, while at the same time competing in the open. All of the amateurs who were eliminated yesterday—48 of 'em—continued to compete in the open.

Providents Plan Double-Bill

Will Meet Former Cleveland Champs at North Park.

Mansfield Providents champion girls' team will meet Cleveland's former metropolitan champions, the Koch Furniture outfit, in a double-header Sunday at 2 p. m. at North Lake park.

The game was scheduled after the Painesville Hi-Speeds, formerly scheduled, were forced to cancel their engagement.

* * *

The Providents, champions for the past two years, will be hardpressed to beat the metropolitan unit which ranks with the 1943 leaders in its league.

* * *

The Providents dropped an extra-inning contest to Cuyahoga Falls by a 6-4 count here last Sunday and are out for revenge. The Cleveland visitors trounced Ashland Tuesday night, 7 to 2.

California Hills Yield Deposits of Vital Minerals

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—Exploration in California's hills and mountain ranges, and research in the state division of mines, has revealed large distribution of minerals essential to war industry.

Maps detailing the mineral distribution have been prepared for use in further exploration

Dr. Joseph S. Hollister, of the committee on latent natural resources, said the maps show the distribution of iron, limestone, molybdenum, vanadium and titanium, magnesite and copper. Deposits of copper are designated as A, B or C, according to the amount of the mineral known to occur.

Along with the mineral maps, other maps showing the distribution of quicksilver, oil and gas have been prepared and maps showing chromite, manganese and tungsten are in production.

The maps, Dr. Hollister said, were made to encourage research on new sources of minerals and on the availability of natural resources not now fully utilized.

NEW YORK DEMS FACING BITTER GOVERNOR FIGHT

New Deal Candidate Enters Primary to Balk Farley Organization Man.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Formal announcement by Senator James M. Mead, New Dealer, that he will seek the Democratic nomination for governor of New York against Attorney General John J. Bennett, backed by James A. Farley, today threw a bolt into the Democratic ranks and presaged a bitter, inter-party political battle this fall.

Chief beneficiary of the struggle within the Democratic party, politicians conceded, would be Thomas E. Dewey, the former racket-busting district attorney, who seems certain to become the Republican nominee for governor.

Senator Mead made known his decision to run in response to separate appeals from a group of prominent New Yorkers and United States Senator Robert F. Wagner urging him to make the race. For weeks New Dealers had been importuning Mead to toss his hat into the gubernatorial ring.

In a letter to Senator Wagner, Mead cast the die when he wrote that, "You, senator, and other high-minded citizens have made me come to realize that I must not permit my personal wishes and my personal preferences to stand in the way of rendering a public service to the people of my state and of my country."

Democratic State Chairman Farley insists he will go down fighting for Bennett to the last ditch, but had no immediate comment to make on Mead's announcement that he will be a candidate.

Coincidentally with Senator Mead's announcement that he will run came a declaration from Bennett, at Albany, that he is satisfied he "will be nominated and elected." Farley holds the same view.

Bennett expressed confidence that the counties now pledged to him will stand pat. The Bennett-pledged delegate strength totals about 600 of the 1,016 delegates to the Democratic state convention which is to be held Aug. 19 and 20 in Brooklyn.

Anticipating the New Deal coup to put Mead into the race, Farley, who heads the Democratic state organization, staged a coup of his own by selecting Brooklyn, Bennett's home borough, and also one of the strongest New Deal communities in the state.

Further complicating the situation was the recent announcement of the American Labor party, which is anti-Bennett, that it would set up its own state ticket. This was regarded as a move to pull votes away from Bennett.

The net result of the now-in-the-open battle between Bennett and Mead is, in the opinion of political leaders, a struggle between the New Deal at Washington and Farley over who will have the political say-so in New York state which will control a big block of votes in the 1944 presidential race.
